

RALPH MCGILL

College Level Reading--

By 1970 roughly one-fourth of the boys and girls applying for college admission will be rejected because they cannot read and write on a college level. The authority who has reached so melancholy a conclusion is Paul D. Diederich, of the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J.

Enrollments by 1970 will mean the average teacher will deal with 200 pupils each. Mr. Diederich calculated from this that it would take each teacher 33 hours to grade and correct one batch of them. If teachers asked for just one written piece of work per week they would have to read papers every school night from 9 p.m. to midnight, plus nine hours on Saturday and nine on Sunday.

Hence, concludes Dr. Diederich, by 1970 a teacher of English can hardly handle more than four themes per year—a test far too meager to teach or instruct.

Dr. Diederich urges drastic action to revise the "methods, staffing and concept of English study."

Literary Lag

There is a grievous literary lag. It is not new. As long as 20 years ago Harvard, Yale and other Eastern universities, in desperation, created a high school English class for their freshmen who came unprepared to read or write at the university level.

Nothing was done until about six years ago when the Fund for Advancement of Education financed experiments in teacher aides. They were most successful. Every neighborhood has a great number of housewives who are college graduates with training in English. They could, after instruction in the program, do the reading of themes and assist with instruction in remedial reading courses and in ungraded tests and exercises. Nor, of course, is the system of teacher aides restricted to English. They also can supervise cafeterias, hallways and playgrounds.

A growing number of schools today are employing the innovation of teaching aides, of television, tapes and recorders.

But the number so doing is relatively small.

Two ingredients are essential. One is the boldness of leadership which will break through the old concepts and apathy, and lack of knowledge, of the average school board. The second, of course, is money.

Emphatic Terms

Dr. Diederich spoke to the annual convention of the American Association of Administrators. A short while before he spoke the Educational Writers' Association heard the same subject discussed in even more emphatic terms by Philip H. Coombs of The Fund for the Advancement of Education. He said flatly that while money is the great lack, we cannot hope to meet our explosively expanding needs simply by spending more money to do on a larger and more expensive scale what we are already doing in the schools and colleges.

"We cannot do so," he said, "because almost everything we are doing is obsolete and inadequate."

His theme was that education, like some industries in America, has not done research and experimentation. "It is," he said, "much like the housing industry whose approach to building a dwelling—by cutting, fitting and piecing together thousands of small pieces at very great cost—has changed little since the early Egyptians."

But chemicals, electronics and petroleum; by research, now earn most of their profits from new products which were not even on the market 10 or 15 years ago. Agriculture has new techniques, methods and increased production via research. The federal government is spending $119 million this year on agricultural research. But the Office of Education has only slightly more than $6 millions for that vital need.

One thing is sure—We can't stand still.

GEA's Hughes Sees Shakeup If Schools Shut

New faces on Georgia's Capitol Hill and even in Washington were predicted Sunday by Georgia Education Assn.'s executive secretary Frank M. Hughes if Georgia's schools are closed.

The prediction came at the tail end of a panel discussion on WSB-TV's television show, Press Gallery, sponsored this week by The Atlanta Constitution.

Appearing with Hughes was State Rep. Battle Hall of Rome.

Hughes said he would not say what the GEA's stand would be on the "open school" question as the time for such statements was not right. But he then said that when the "crisis came" (the closing of the schools), the GEA would take a stand.

"I didn't think the private school plan would work when it was first introduced, and I still don't," Hughes said. "When the plan fails the GEA will move to support free, public, tax-supported schools."

Hughes said any stand now might have a negative effect as did "the members of HOPE ap-

Rider, Horse Killed by Car

BUENA VISTA, Ga. (AP)—A young man and the horse he was riding were struck down by a car and killed instantly on Highway 41 Sunday as the man's horrified brother looked on.

Sgt. O. G. Douglas and Trooper C. W. Hill of the State Patrol identified the victim as Robert Gilbert Sawyer, 24, of Charing. They said the driver of the car was Watson S. Brown, of 3017 Flamingo Dr., Decatur. No charges have been lodged against Brown.

The patrolmen said Sawyer's brother, Dan W., who also was riding a horse, witnessed the tragedy.

New Industrialization Due For the Savannah in 1962

SYLVANIA — Recent heavy rains have swollen and muddled the waters of the historic Savannah River, whose twisting path from the mountains to the sea served in centuries past as a main highway for Indians, explorers, traders and settlers.

But now something else is beginning to swell up in the river-side counties of Georgia and South Carolina—something even mightier, if less tangible, than the Savannah.

Something called hope. Hope that at long last the Savannah River, its often turbulent waters now virtually tamed by into its own as an important highway of commerce and industry. Among the most optimistic is Screven County newspaperman Clyde Hollingsworth, editor of the Sylvania Telephone, who says confidently:

"I look to see, within 15 to 20 years, the Savannah River industrialized from one end to the other."

Airliner Saved by Snow Pad

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A fresh snowfall cushioned the wheels-up landing of a crippled Trans World Airlines passenger plane at nearby Olathe Naval Air Station Sunday.

The plane, a twin-engine Martin with six passengers and three crew members aboard, lost its left two wheels during takeoff from Chicago Sunday morning on a scheduled flight to Peoria, Ill. It was rerouted to Olathe for the emergency landing.

Capt. Bob Rice, 37, of Chicago, the pilot, said, "I've never made a belly landing before and never want to again."

Rice said he thought all along he could bring the plane down safely with the facilities available at Olathe.

A TWA spokesman said the plane set down on four inches of new snow and skidded about 300 to 400 feet before coming to a stop.

"I don't think I realized the danger we were in," said Sharon Lorentzen, 21, the hostess who had been with TWA 20 months Saturday. "The people themselves were the ones who prevented panic. There was absolutely no hysteria."

Miss Lorentzen, of Gary, Ind., said she and the passengers joked and talked to each other during the emergency. She said they were in the air three hours after METAWA, Ill. (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson was swept into office by a landslide vote Saturday—his first election triumph since he became governor of Illinois in 1948.

The twice-defeated presidential candidate was elected, 38-0, trustee of the newly organized village of Metawa, a suburban area north of Chicago where Stevenson owns a farm. The former Illinois governor did little formal politicking. He is in South America on a tour.

Ike, Frondizi Pledge Peace, End of Poverty in Americas

BARILOCHE, Argentina — The United States and Argentina joined Sunday in pledging a just and lasting peace in freedom for all nations and to banish ignorance and poverty in the Americas.

This was the substance of a "Declaration of Bariloche" signed by President Eisenhower for the United States and Arturo Frondizi for Argentina following three days of conferences and a final session late Sunday at which they were accompanied only by two interpreters.

The joint statement reaffirmed the concept previously asserted by both men that liberty and democracy are endangered wherever ignorance and misery were permitted. It called on all nations to work for a system of guaranteed disarmament to the end that funds now committed to end that funds now committed to aid developing areas willing to combine such assistance with their own hard work.

For President Eisenhower, the signing ceremony in the main hall of the Liao Liao Hotel overlooking Lake Nahuel Huapi was the culmination of a busy day in which he combined fishing with official talks. He spent more than two hours Sunday morning wading in a fast mountain stream and on returning by helicopter went straight to bed.

Newsman who accompanied the presidential party from Washington and who witnessed the landing outside the hotel commented on his fatigued appearance. One of them said the President had not looked so "haggard" since his convalescence from a heart attack in 1956.

But after a nap he was off by

Reds Lend Indonesia 250 Million

BOGOR, Indonesia (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev Sunday handed this neutralist Southeast Asian nation a loan of $250 million.

In turn, Indonesian President Sukarno promised to keep neutral between East-West blocs.

Economic and cultural agreements and a joint communique were signed by the two leaders as a climax to Khrushchev's 12-day visit to Indonesia, which ends next Tuesday.

FACT GRANTS CREDIT

The economic agreement granted a seven-year credit, at 2½ per cent interest to be paid back in 12 years in British pounds or commodities rather than Indonesian rupiahs.

The two countries also agreed to enter into a trade agreement in which the Soviet Union would increase its purchases of Indonesian rubber and other products.

As a gift, Khrushchev announced the Soviet Union would build a new 200-bed hospital and clinic.

PLEDGES NEUTRALITY

In the communique, Indonesia said she "firmly adheres to its active and independent foreign policy, a policy of nonalignment with existing military alliances." The Western-oriented Southeast Asia Treaty Organization is the only alliance in the area.

Khrushchev bowed to Sukarno's appeal for Asian-African representation at the summit by expressing hope that conferences subsequent to the one next May will include "appropriate countries of Asia and Africa" not aligned in any existing alliances.

Also, Khrushchev supported again Indonesia's claim to Dutch New Guinea.

The communique expressed hope for an agreement at Geneva ending nuclear tests, and lauded Khrushchev's proposals for total world disarmament.

It described Khrushchev's visit to the United States last fall as a "great contribution" to lessening of tensions and expressed hope President Eisenhower's return trip to the Soviet Union would bring "positive results."

Soviet experts and technicians will be sent to Indonesia under the economic accord.

Uneasy Calm Marks Segregation Front

By the Associated Press
An uneasy truce prevailed Sunday on the Southern segregation front.

Everything was quiet in the trouble spots, but Negro ministers in Montgomery, Ala., where a Negro woman was hit in the head by a stick-wielding white man Saturday, reportedly asked their congregations to support peaceful student sit-in demonstrations against racial discrimination.

Montgomery police destroyed half a dozen race-baiting signs found tacked up on trees in white residential sections. The signs bore such messages as, "Have you fired your Negro worker yet?"

There was a bomb scare in Chattanooga, Tenn., Saturday night at a Negro high school gymnasium during a basketball game. The building was emptied quickly, but police found no trace of an explosive. The game was resumed.

Chattanooga police, fearful of a recurrence of last week's disturbances, made 18 precautionary arrests during the night, breaking up groups and clusters of potential troublemakers.

In Nashville, Tenn., 75 persons, nearly all students, arrested after three fights broke out during a sit-in demonstration in a downtown variety store, were released on $100 bond each late Saturday night despite their earlier announced intentions to remain in jail over the weekend.

They came out of their cells after college officials personally appealed to them.

Sitdowners Followed Rules On Mimeographed Sheet

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Demonstrators who protested segregated lunch counters in downtown Nashville followed a carefully outlined plan. Each had a mimeographed sheet with these instructions:

- Do show yourself friendly on the counter at all times.
- Do sit straight and always face the counter.
- Do report all incidents to your leader.
- Do refer all information to your leader in a polite manner.
- Do remember the teachings of Jesus Christ, Mohandas K. Gandhi and Martin Luther King.
- Don't strike back, or curse back if attacked.
- Don't laugh out.
- Don't hold conversations with floor workers.
- Don't leave your seat until your leader has given you permission to do so.
- Don't block entrances to the stores and the aisles.
- "Remember love and nonviolence, may God bless each of you."

Nixon Has Farm Plan, Mundt Says

Presages Break With Benson?

By ROBERT F. WHITNEY
(Copyright 1960 The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON—Vice President Nixon is preparing a farm program of his own in the presidential campaign.

This was the word of Sen. Mundt, Republican of South Dakota, in a radio interview Sunday. A spokesman for Nixon said the vice president would have no comment.

BREAKING WITH BENSON

Sen. Mundt's prediction, if borne out by events, seems to presage a break by Nixon from the policies of Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

This has been the subject of speculation in Washington for several weeks. However, Secretary Benson has said the vice president is a supporter of his farm policy.

On Dec. 31 Benson, during a news conference, said the vice president has been an important part in the administration which developed the farm program and:

"I would see no reason why he wouldn't see fit to support a program which he has helped to develop and when he has spoken out he has supported the program."

REPORT EXPECTED

What Sen. Mundt was saying on the Mutual Broadcasting System's radio program "Reporters Roundup" has been expected as a development after Nixon is nominated by the Republican convention.

It was recalled that Nixon, speaking Jan. 27 at Chicago to a $100-a-plate Republican dinner, said:

"... We believe there is no higher legislative priority than a complete overhauling of obsolete farming programs under which the prices farmers receive continue to go down and the costs to the taxpayer continue to go up."

FARMING ISSUE

The vice president also has said that he believes agriculture will be the foremost domestic issue in the 1960 campaign.

Mundt predicted the vice president would have a program "entirely independent" of proposals by Benson or by President Eisenhower.

"The farm vote vis-a-vis Nixon will depend more on the persuasiveness and the attractiveness of his farm policies than it will on an aversion they (the farmers) might have to Secretary Benson," Mundt said.

Let Chief Decide, Lovett Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Secretary of Defense Lovett says the President should not be "protected" from making the hard decisions on national security.

In secret Senate testimony released Sunday, Lovett suggested that procedures of the National Security Council—the top defense policy body—may have tended to insulate the commander in chief from troublesome problems of the cold war.

Avoiding direct reference to any individuals or specific decisions, Lovett implied the NSC's present methods and size could discourage compromise and delay.

TESTIFIED LAST WEEK

The Republican banker, who was undersecretary of state in the Truman administration and later secretary of defense until President Eisenhower took office, appeared Tuesday before the National Policy Machinery subcommittee headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.).

The Jackson committee has begun a series of hearings on whether a harder-hitting, faster-moving national effort can be brought about by revising the policymaking machinery.

A portion of Lovett's testimony dealing with the NSC, which he had a hand in creating in 1947, was taken in executive session by prior agreement with the White House.

CLEARED FOR RELEASE

Now cleared for release, it revealed that Lovett applied to NSC his publicly stated view that the State and Defense departments and other agencies are burdened by proliferating committees and overlapping staffs.

These factors, coupled with a reluctance of subordinates to expose policy conflicts before the chief executive, cause "vacillating administration and wavering policies," Lovett said.

Fists Fly At London Race Rally

Extremists Battle Police; 9 Seized

LONDON (UPI)—Racial extremists tried to break up a public rally protesting South Africa's segregation policies Sunday and wound up in a running fist fight with police.

The extremists, members of Sir Oswald Mosley's "Keep Britain White" organization, started the battle at historic Trafalgar Square. Scattered clashes subsequently broke out as far as Whitehall, a mile away and close to the prime minister's residence.

Nine men were arrested and charged with insulting police. No serious injuries were reported.

Some 10,000 persons had attended the rally, which was called to promote a world-wide boycott of South African goods because of that nation's stand on segregation. Labor Party leader Hugh Gaitskell was among the speakers.

The white supremacists infiltrated the rally and began shouting "boycott Jewish goods" and "be right, be white." Two men who shouted "down with Mosley" were punched, thrown to the ground and kicked and general violence soon followed.

Mosley, who led Britain's Fascist elements in the years prior to World War II, was present but did not take part in the melee.

"My supporters have strict orders to use force only in self-defense," he said. He added: "After all, a punch on the nose and a little blood is a true Englishman's way of fighting."

Plane to Boost Peak Scalars

GENEVA (UPI)—Five Swiss mountaineers left for Nepal Sunday to climb the world's highest unscaled mountain. They will fly most of the way up in an airplane.

This eighth expedition to tackle Dhaulagiri, 26,795 feet high, was said to be the first in climbing history to use an airplane.

"It does away with needless danger—not with the difficulty of conquering the mountain," said climber Michel Vaucher.

The expedition plans to use a Swiss-made porter Pilatus light plane to fly the climbers, their Sherpas, supplies and equipment straight from the valley airport to a new base camp 20,668 feet up the mountain. They'll go on foot from here.

Airliner Lands With One Prop Out; 83 Safe

LONDON (UPI)—A Trans-Canadian airliner carrying 74 passengers and a crew of nine landed at London Airport Sunday night with one engine out. The plane had to circle twice before landing because of undercarriage trouble.

Airport officials said the engine went out 1,200 miles from Goose Bay, Labrador, its last stop, when one of the propeller blades broke.

No injuries were reported. The plane had departed from Toronto.

It's 4-Year-Olds' First Birthday

By MARION GAINES

A score or more youngsters in Metropolitan Atlanta will be four years old Monday, but they'll all be celebrating their first birthdays.

Their first by the calendar, that is. They're caught in the same paradox that ensnares all boys and girls who're born on the rarest day on the calendar, Feb. 29.

The Atlanta area's Leap Year sprouts are among 118,000 Americans whose birthday comes up only once every four years. Their ranks are expected to be swelled Monday by some 11,000 brand-new recruits.

That's the number, based on census estimates, of babies who'll be born Monday in the United States. For their parents, it'll pose this stickler:

When will Johnny celebrate his birthday? On Feb. 28 each year? Or March 1? Or just once every four years?

If the practice of Leap Year Day families in Atlanta is any guide, then the once-every-four solution is definitely out.

Children being children (and parents being parents), there's going to be a birthday celebration each and every year—calendar or no calendar.

Danny Bostwick, a Leap Year baby of 1956 vintage, usually spreads his birthday partying over a three-day period.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Bostwick, of 418 Chappell Rd., NW, explained that a Feb. 28 celebration for Danny "makes him a day younger" and a March 1 observance "makes his birthday come in another month."

"So we just let Danny celebrate around three days," said Mrs. Bostwick.

The Dean Cobbs, of 1026 Boulevard Dr., NE, have two enchanting reasons for celebrating Leap Year Day: identical-twin daughters Patricia Lynn and Pamela Gwenn.

Pat and Pam are carbon-copy look-alikes with strawberry blond tresses and big blue eyes. Pam checked into Georgia Baptist Hospital at 2:55 p.m. on Feb. 29, 1956, and tipped the scales at four pounds, two ounces. Ten minutes later Pat arrived, outweighing her elder sister by seven ounces.

"We celebrate their birthdays on Feb. 28 every year," said Mrs. Cobb. The Cobbs this year were scheduled to go to Jacksonville, Ala., to visit Mrs. Cobb's mother who had planned for the twins "a big party on their first birthday."

Four-year-old Allen Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Stevenson, of 119 Tanner Rd., College Park, is also treated to a yearly birthday party, but he has to share it with big brother, Marion, five.

When Allen "has a party, his big brother has to have one, too," said Mrs. Stevenson, although Marion's real birthday falls on Oct. 18.

Atlanta's Leap Year Day babies are in good company. Several noted persons have been born on Feb. 29, including Ann-Lee, founder of the Shaker sect, and Gioacchino Rossini, the Italian composer.

At the age of 72, Rossini celebrated what he called his 18th birthday—and facetiously said he intended to turn over a new leaf and abandon the frivolities of youth.

Fulton Welfare Outlays Top $10 Million in '59

Welfare expenditures from all sources soared to more than $10 million in Fulton County during 1959, Welfare Administrator Wellborn R. Ellis reported Sunday.

Chief cause of the increased expenditures was higher case volumes and increases in grant payments to welfare recipients, Ellis said.

The administrator added that the caseload during 1960 may be expected to increase 400 across the board, based on 1959 experience.

Total expenditures for 1959 from state, federal and county funds were $10,501,999. Total grants amounted to $9,586,683, or about $882,000 more than in 1958.

Biggest caseload increase was noted in the categories of aid to the disabled, up to 2,543 from 2,136; aid to dependent children, up to 1,937 from 1,790; old age assistance, up to 8,550 from 8,482, and aid to the blind, up to 401 from 393.

Old age assistance involved the largest amount of funds, totalling $4,976,322. Aid to dependent children amounted to $1,963,614; aid to the disabled, $1,659,891; and aid to the blind, $263,934.

Ellis said these increases in per-case grants were made during the year.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

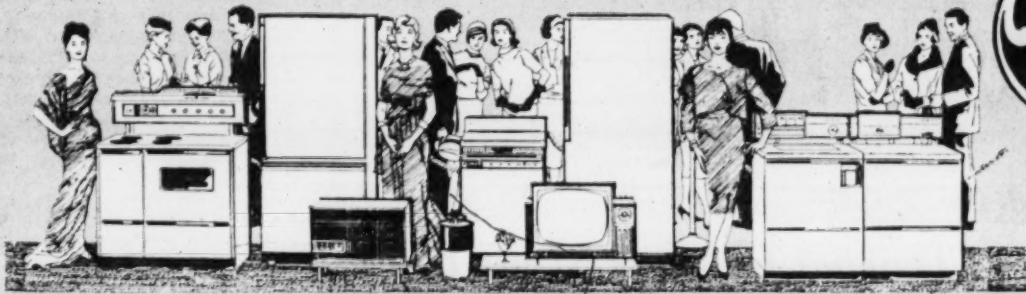

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing. All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. *Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Job Talks

By Vera Atkins

Co-Owner of Atkins Personnel Service

Of interest, particularly to those of us in Personnel, is a big new movement apparent within progressive firms — that of "Human Relations". This truly interesting development of concern for the worker is a part of the growing philosophy of management in its recognition of the intrinsic value of a firm's "employees".

Many magazines are more and more dedicating many of their articles to the need and the advantages of "Human Relations". Nation's Business is an outstanding example. So is the Personnel Journal.

Articles in both discuss everything from "Attitudes Block-Communications" . . . "Job Enlargement and Employee Satisfaction" . . . "Five Tests for Initiative" . . . "Good Leaders Do These Things" . . . to "A Business Woman Looks at Job Appeal".

The whole picture points to one main thing . . . the importance of the individual to any business.

Certainly, the recognition of the need to select the best person for each job opening . . . and utilize that person's talents and skills — has become a basic factor in business growth and success.

School Commission Needs Cooperation

Having completed its organizational setup and the preliminaries to one of the most important tasks ever handed to a group of Georgians, the State School Study Commission this week gets down to brass tacks in an intensive survey of public opinion and studies of alternatives in the school crisis.

A series of 10 public hearings will be held in each of the state's congressional districts at which time Georgia's responsible leadership will get a chance to be heard.

Chairman John A. Sibley, who has made it clear that Georgia's choice is to change laws in conflict with federal court interpretations or to face closing of the public school system, Friday showed himself fully aware of the heavy responsibility upon the group. He demonstrated also an awareness of the complexity of the whole problem and of the need for clear thinking.

"We are dealing with a situation," Mr. Sibley said, "that is not without confusion and one where it is easier to confound the confusion than to clarify it." The first job, he says, is to clarify the confusion.

The chairman also indicates the committee's knowledge that local conditions vary and that these should be taken into consideration. "... Your committee," he said, "is perfectly conscious of the fact that the operation of certain types of laws in the cities may be different than in the country, and your committee is perfectly conscious of the fact that the difference is being reflected in the minds of a number of people that is bringing about division of thought."

The committee has begun its work with an honest statement of purpose which accepts the fact of federal court orders and decisions and the inevitability of complying with them to the degree necessary or abandoning public education. And demagoguery and extremism to the contrary, this is the only logical premise from which to proceed.

It is possible to comply with federal orders without mass integration. Solutions found in other states through pupil placement laws have been upheld in the courts. Local communities are handling their own problems without resorting to destruction of public schools. Certainly they should be given the choice.

We hope the committee can come up with constructive answers which indeed will clarify the confusion and misconceptions to the end that public education can be saved. And in this task we hope the people of Georgia will assist with full understanding of the alternatives.

Will Hardwood Pests Denude Our Forests?

For the past few years many of our finest hardwood trees, particularly oaks, have been dying in Georgia as far south as Atlanta.

Now comes disturbing word from a regional forestry meeting in Blairsville that a pest, blamed for the destruction of millions of hardwood trees in north Georgia, Tennessee and North Carolina, is out of control and nothing can be done save to permit it to run its course.

That this may denude the forest of most of the hardwood is a possibility. Men now living remember the millions of chestnut trees which once were so magnificent a part of the Appalachian forests. They have been gone for many years. Now many if not all of the oaks and other hardwoods will go unless nature relents.

Once again we are up against the fact that man for all his knowledge and his development of chemical insecticides is not in control. Natural controls, if they can be assisted, work better. But spraying with DDT, no longer effective, has killed off many of the natural controls such as parasitic beetles.

It is a sad and shocking story and we can only hope nature and man can discover a way to save the hardwoods.

Court Decision Upholds Right of Free Assembly

The great harm which can be done to public understanding and law enforcement by legislation hastily enacted without proper attention being given to its constitutionality is revealed by the Supreme Court reversal of two Little Rock ordinances.

The ordinances were enacted in 1957 at the peak of the chaos in Little Rock. They required all organizations to reveal their membership lists. It was aimed at the local NAACP. It was adopted at a time when known members of that highly controversial organization were being fired from public and private employment.

The Supreme Court, acting unanimously, said that there was substantial uncontroverted evidence that public identification of persons in the community as members had been followed by harassment and threats of bodily harm. It also had discouraged new members from joining. The court asserted that First Amendment rights are beyond abridgment and that equal application of the law as provided in the 14th Amendment also applied.

It will be a mistake if because of intense dislike of the NAACP one views this decision narrowly. If the Constitution were to be breached merely to punish one organization, then no other would be safe from harassment if a government set out to punish it or its members. This was a ruling upholding the right of legitimate assembly in all times and places.

Now Princess Margaret Makes Pleasant News

Britain's royal family continues to make pleasant news.

Birth of a son to Queen Elizabeth II a few days ago brought smiles and rejoicing to people all over the world as well as to Her Majesty's subjects. Americans were especially pleased since the young Queen holds a special place in our hearts.

Now comes the announcement by the Queen Mother that the 29-year-old sister of Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, is engaged to marry a commoner of her own choice.

The princess, too, has been popular and admired by Americans for many years. While never compromising her position as a member of the royal family, she has shown an admirable independence and forthrightness of character which went beyond being a mere captive of position. They will never forget her self-denial in the much-publicized Peter Townsend episode.

But now the princess will wed in true storybook fashion—and with the royal blessing—an untitled man of her own selection. The event will endear her further to her millions of admirers everywhere. We rejoice with them in this happy ending to a story which at times has seemed bleak and wearying for a delightful person.

New Newspaper Offers Insight Into Civil War

"The Atlanta Century," properly described as "a new and different Atlanta newspaper," will begin publication in the Sunday Journal-Constitution of March 6.

It will be a weekly re-creation of a Civil War newspaper's front page. Staff members Norman Shavin and Mike Edwards, themselves Southerners, assisted by Martin Abbott of Oglethorpe University, will produce the newspaper. It will prepare readers for an understanding of the Civil War Centennial which begins in 1961.

The year 1860 was the crucial year. It was the time of the great failure of rational debate in the Congress and the substitution of extremist recriminations.

It is important and, we believe, highly entertaining and valuable to study history and be prepared for the Civil War Centennial. Already the first trickle of what will become a flood of books on the Civil War is beginning to flow. Georgia's Centennial Committee is at work preparing for this state's participation.

"The Atlanta Century" will be the name of this one-page, new and different Sunday newspaper. We believe schools and homes will wish to preserve it in scrapbook form. It will be — and make — history.

Search for Black Gold To Continue in State

Sporadic testing for oil in Georgia, while unproductive to date, has not discouraged geologists and oil interests. They still are convinced that under the state's coastal plains regions is petroleum in commercial quantities.

Announcement that new and intensive testing is about to be undertaken by a Texas oil group lends new hope that if there's oil it will be discovered. The fact that there have been only 74 test wells previously in Georgia indicates that very little exploration actually has occurred. More than 400 tests were tried in Alabama before the first oil was found a few years ago.

Georgia is blessed with abundant soil and water resources. But to date its mineral resources, considered sparse in comparison with some other states, have remained comparatively undeveloped. Discovery of oil would add greatly to our economic potential.

The Houston group believes there is oil in Georgia. We hope their tests are extensive enough to determine the facts and to bring a new source of wealth to the state.

Georgia Teacher Defends Right To Fight For Improvements in Educational System

Atlanta—I am one of those teachers who have been called unprofessional because I am willing to quit my job to insure a teacher pay raise and thereby raise the quality of education in Georgia. I should like to state my case.

First, if I were only interested in the financial aspects I would not be in the teaching profession for I am one of those who make $3,000 a year.

Recently in our Georgia Education Assn. unit a vote was taken to determine how many teachers wished to stand with the GEA regardless of consequences and how many wished to support the United Teachers of Georgia in the event that the GEA failed again to secure a substantial raise. The vote on the former issue was in majority but these facts were revealed: A great number admitted after the meeting that they didn't know what the vote was about and stood up only because someone else did. Another large number refusing to support UTG belonged to the group which will be without jobs when the state can afford to pay qualified teachers. Add to these an ever-increasing number of misfits and undesirable who occupy classrooms and principals' offices in some of our rural schools and you have about 90 per cent of the teachers who are horrified at the word strike and who are too professional-minded to demand that something be done.

Those of us who, day by day, sit and look at the results of our substandard educational system find these sights much more horrifying. We feel also that we are being labeled "unprofessional" and "abominable and reprehensible" in an effort to silence us and shame us into accepting our pittance and enduring our miserable status quo so that our politicians may grow fat off our humility and ignorance. God forbid!

Atlanta — May I congratulate Barbara Bright on the excellent article on dentistry that appeared recently in The Atlanta Constitution. I thought the information was correct and very effectively presented.

Thank you for your fine article which will contribute to the dental health of our community.

Teacher Spurns Idea Of Strike for Pay

Columbus—I have read with dismay that the Warner Robins Teachers' Assn. is trying to enlist the support of Georgia teachers for an ultimatum to quit their jobs if $1,000 salary increases are not granted. I hope that this idea will be promptly and overwhelmingly rejected by the teachers.

I do not think that a strike by teachers is ever in order. And at this time, I think even the suggestion of a large increase in salary is most inappropriate. Our governor and our Legislature have been very considerate of the teachers in promising to honor their contracts even if their schools should be closed by federal orders to integrate.

And may I say, also, that even if we had not been given this assurance, even if my job were to be cut off suddenly and not one penny more of salary to be received, I would still be in favor of closing our schools rather than accept one bit of integration. As valuable as public schools are to our children, there are other things of even more value that we must preserve for them.

I hope the Classroom Teachers Assn. will drop the agitation for a large salary increase at this time and that they will never sponsor a request backed by threat of strike.

MISS FRANCIS DUGGAR,
Teacher in Muscogee School District.

Trucking Lobby Hit For Using Taxpayer

Atlanta — In regard to the editorial titled "Trucking Lobby Wins Victory Over Taxpayer" I would like to say the trucking lobby has been successfully using every means and method necessary to write our laws and regulations for their own profit at the taxpayer's expense for years.

They are not only getting a ride on the taxpayers' back at reduced rates but are using longer and wider trucks making it dangerous for other cars on the road.

Will Blind Leaders Direct State's Course?

Rockmart — The Legislature is elected by the people to govern the state in such a manner that is best for all the people. That the lawmakers could even think of closing the schools is beyond reason.

Most of the lawmakers are financially better off than the average person. They will be able to send their children to private schools. They know their children will be educated. But what about others, whose parents are not so fortunate? Will these children be denied the education that their parents have already paid for? Surely the people of Georgia are not going to allow this to happen.

We have made great progress in the past two decades toward becoming the industrial center of the South. Are we to give this up, simply because our leaders are so blind? I, for one, do not wish to return to the days of which Erskine Caldwell writes. But this is what our lawmakers would have us do.

Marriage 'Racket' Blasted by Georgian

Ellaville — Thanks for the editorial concerning "quickie marriages." The love of money goes on and as a result people's lives are exploited.

As long as men in position to correct such evils fail in their duty we will drift farther and farther into degradation and spiritual ruin.

MARION JONES.

He Defends Merits Of Private Schools

Boston, Ga. — What is wrong with private schools? There are many in Georgia and they are much better than some of our public schools.

There are a lot of religious groups in the state that are screaming, "Save our public schools" and "We do not want private schools."

To the Baptists I ask, "Are you saying that Mercer University is no good?" To the Presbyterians I ask, "Are you saying that Oglethorpe University is no good?" And to the Methodists I ask, "What about Martha Berry, the great mountain school?"

If you think these schools are no good why do you contribute money to support them? To be consistent you should close these great colleges.

Look at the caliber of men and women they are turning out who are going high in the sciences of medicine, surgery, nuclear study, philosophy, law, etc.

Are you ashamed of them? I certainly am not.

Ten Sayings That Will Last

Saturday I told you about Dr. Theodore Palmquist, the man who devised the "contented cows" phrase, then became a Methodist minister. When Dr. Palmquist talked in Norfolk the other day, he read a list of sayings, by composite opinion the "Ten Greatest" in history. I tried to copy as fast as the man talked.

As near as I could keep up, they are these:

- (1) The Golden Rule.
- (2) Confucius: "Hatred ceases not by hatred. Hatred ceases by love."
- (3) Socrates: "Know thyself."
- (4) Also ascribed to Plato, Pythagoras, Chilo, Thales, Cleobulus, Bias and Solon. But not to Bob Hope, Milton Berle or Jack Paar.
- (5) Micah 6: 8: "... and what does the Lord require of you but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with your God?"
- (6) 1 Corinthians 13: 13: "So faith, hope, abide, these three, but the greatest of these is love."
- (7) Matthew 10: 39: "He who finds his life will lose it, and he who loses his life for my sake will find it."
- (8) Kant: "My religion is to do good, my country is the world."
- (9) Thomas Paine: "Live according to laws that could be made universal laws of behavior."
- (10) Edmund Burke, at the time of the American Revolution: "I know of no way to draw up an indictment against a whole people."
- (11) Lincoln: "With malice toward none; with charity for all."

In common: Dr. Palmquist noted three things about the 10 sayings.

First, nine of them are about brotherhood. The exception, I would say, is "Know thyself."

And even then, as early as 292 B.C., Menander was saying, "It were more practical to say 'Know other people!'"

Secondly, the last of the great sayings listed was said in 1865.

And third, the preacher said something not destined to please part of his congregation. He observed not one of the 10 was from a woman. He opined, "Not in 2,000 years has woman said anything worth remembering."

Note carefully please, he said that. I didn't.

I LIKE THIS: "Togetherness doesn't guarantee friendship. If it did, the New York subway would be the friendliest place in the world."

Yes, and a bargain basement on Dollar Day.

HIGHLINE: Young ladies shouldn't wear shorts in public, as it disturbs older men's wives. —A. W. Quattlebaum, Pike County Journal.

Nixon Camp Woos Independent Vote

WASHINGTON—Vice President Nixon has already marked off the one truly critical battle area for the presidential campaign. He is moving into it with no effort at concealing either his purpose or his forces. As he appears to the Republican presidential nomination, Nixon is openly centering all his planning on the so-called independent vote.

He seeks also, of course, such help as may be had from rebellious Democrats.

He is not really bothering much about the regular Republican voters. For, though he himself would never put it so baldly, the plain fact is that he has got the orthodox and Old Guard Republicans already.

His whole basic strategy frankly accepts that he cannot win simply with the votes of these traditional Republicans. In the country at large more-or-less Democrats outnumber more-or-less Republicans by the millions. The independents are the swing forces. That is the operative fact which Nixon is confronting with characteristically cool realism.

The word is being passed that a Nixon presidency would be in some ways more "modern" even than the "modern Republican" presidency of Eisenhower. Nixon himself is going out of his way to be heard and to persuade the liberal independent in his very den. He is taking every opportunity to talk to university faculty and student groups, which tend to regard themselves as simply too independent for words.

The Nixon campaign policy, moreover, increasingly encourages pro-Nixon groups in which political independents (people who claim no allegiance to either party) occupy the top places. Disappointed or angry Democrats are warmly welcomed, too.

Now, 500 campaign "clubs" are already quietly operating over the country—and more than 400 of these don't even use the word "Republican." They simply use the words "For Nixon."

He assumes—and Eisenhower's two overwhelming victories sustain him in theory at least—that the independents, in fact, form the great key to presidential success for the Republicans.

Thus, day by day Nixon is moving farther and farther away from any close identification with the Old Guard.

The current monthly Democratic Digest uses 14 pages in an attack on what it calls "nimble Nixon." The effort is to show that the vice president is presenting himself as "a liberal Republican" but at heart is an Old Guardist.

At the same time, the editor of the Republican National Committee publication, called Battle Line, Jack McDonald, is circulating a roundup of public opinion polls seeking to show the reverse. These polls try to suggest that far from being bad news to the independents Nixon is good news to them, indeed.

Love Is Gateway To Abundant Life

Most people have working vocabularies which contain thousands of words. I have at hand a small paperback volume which contains many less frequently used words. On the cover is this comment, "Ten minutes a day will double your vocabulary." Given the time and perseverance, any one of us could increase considerably the reservoir from which we draw words for writing and conversation.

Then we should know just the right word for any occasion although we might end up by using big, new words which other people do not understand!

But more important than the size of our vocabulary is the meaning and weight we give to the words we use. Dr. Wilfred Funk, who has devoted many years to word study, singles out 10 expressive words which all of us know and understand. He considers these everyday words to cover the whole range of human experience.

He says that the most bitter word in the English language is "alone"; the most reverent, "mother"; the most tragic, "death"; the most peaceful, "tranquil"; the most cruel, "revenge"; the saddest, "forgotten"; the warmest, "friendship"; the coldest, "no"; the most comforting, "faith"; and the most beautiful, "love."

Which of these words is the one by which we are enabled to live the fullest, happiest and most abundant life? I think that word is "love."

There isn't enough love in our world. There isn't even enough love in many of our homes to undergird and sustain our marriages. Part of the reason, I think, is that we do not know how to love one another or we are unwilling to make the sacrifices and sacrifices which love requires.

Too often we love other people only because we want to use them and to manipulate their lives in such fashions that they serve us. Or we love them only because their attentions and kindnesses flatter our egos. "Momism," as some psychologists use the word, refers to the indulgent love of mothers for children; which is aggressive, selfish, self-gratifying and possessive. Such "momism," whether it reflects the relations between mother and child, husband and wife or friend and friend is self-defeating and self-exhausting. Permanence and stability in love cannot be based on that kind of love.

Many of us remember how President Truman wrote in his published diary that he had only one sweetheart from the time he was six. Even then he thought that she was the most beautiful and sweetest person on earth and after all these years of marriage is still of that opinion.

Such enduring love, a love which bolsters and enheartens men in times of crisis and decision, is not superficial and transient. It comes from surrender and through sacrifice. And such love is available to each of us if we are willing to pay the price love exacts from every lover.

Nominee System Is Mysterious Process

WASHINGTON—It is a pretty bizarre, mysterious and meandering process the way we pick our presidential nominees. The truth is that Democratic and Republican voters have little to say about whom their parties nominate. Nowhere along the line from self-announced candidacy to the final convention ballot do the rank and file of either party have any significant voice.

It will be the same this year—only more so. Events have successfully discouraged all contest for the Republican nomination. The Chicago convention hardly needs to be held. It's deliberative function could be fulfilled by a phalanx of IBM machines. The Democrats have no shortage of contenders but they are giving Democratic voters in few states an opportunity to show whom they want.

The presidential primaries have become more of a menace than a means of reflecting popular sentiment. They are neglected by the voters. They are neglected by the candidates who usually pick one or two where they feel they are likely to win.

In 1952 Sen. Kefauver won nearly all the Democratic primaries and ended up with nothing at the convention.

In 1956 Sen. Kefauver lost the major Democratic primaries and ended up with the vice presidential nomination. Kefauver found it more productive to lose the primaries than to win them. The other conclusion is that they had no bearing whatsoever in either year.

A single state primary often exerts a far greater psychological

8 Killed in State Traffic; Mother, Daughter Die

By the Associated Press
Eight persons died in weekend Georgia traffic.

John L. Coffee, 65, of Marietta, was killed Saturday night in a collision on U.S. 41, north of Marietta.

Another Saturday night accident cost the lives of a mother and daughter. The State Patrol said Rosie Lee Banks, 47, and Mary Lois Banks, 26, both of Barnesville, died in a wreck caused when a car made a left turn in front of oncoming traffic on U.S. 341 about two miles south of Barnesville.

The patrol said a pedestrian, Annie Buxton, 58, of Savannah, was killed Saturday when she ran into the path of a car near the Savannah city limits.

Other weekend traffic deaths included:

Clifford F. King, 30, of Carnesville, whose car overturned on Georgia 106.

Lamar Bryant, 25, of Social Circle, whose car swerved into the path of a tractor trailer on Georgia 11 at Monroe after a fire blew out.

Guss Cleckley, 46, of College Park, who drowned when his car plunged from the road near Senoia and landed in Line Creek.

Robert Gilbert Sawyer, 24, of Charing was killed when the horse he was riding ran into the path of a car near Buena Vista. (Story on Page 1.)

Loew's Grand Partially Emptied As Firemen Battle Smoke Bomb

Loew's Grand Theater resumed normal operations Sunday after a fire scare late Saturday night.

The theater was partially evacuated about 11:15 p.m. Saturday when smoke poured inside. A smoke bomb, apparently set off by pranksters, was found in an alley outside. A nearby exhaust fan pulled the smoke inside the theater.

Rein Rabakuk, assistant theater manager, announced from the stage that the film "Suddenly, Last Summer," which was about two-thirds over, would continue while firemen battled the smoke bomb outside.

Theater Manager Howard Rutherford said most of the audience remained seated while "a few persons" evacuated the premises.

Twenty firemen who worked to put out the smoke bomb were later treated for sore throats at Grady Hospital.

2 Youths Caught in Break-In Atlanta police cut short a burglary attempt late Sunday night and arrested two juveniles hiding inside a store.

Detectives R. L. Shuttley and R. L. Mann said the youths, aged 13 and 14, had climbed through a window to enter the Ogletree Self-Service Grocery, 2879 Gordon Rd., Southwest.

Patrolmen C. C. Sewell and A. P. Guyton found the boys hiding in the store and arrested them.

Detectives Shuttley and Mann said the youths, both Negroes, admitted another burglary at Carson's Grocery Store, 2647 Gordon Rd., SW.

The boys were placed in the Fulton juvenile detention home on burglary charges.

Names of accused youths under 17 are withheld in accordance with the Georgia juvenile court law.

East Point Fetes Chief, Dedicates Fire Station

Sunday was Chief Max Wiggins Day in East Point, and the chief celebrated by dedicating the city's fourth fire station.

From 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. firemen played host at the flower-bedecked new station. They served 1,200 sandwiches, cakes, coffee, and about 10 gallons of punch.

The station, at 2222 Ben Hill Rd., is the city's westernmost station. It can house two pumpers, has a six-man crew around the clock, and was built after city voters passed a $105,000 bond issue.

The five-acre plot surrounding the station will be used for building a training tower and will be the central training site for East Point's firemen in the future.

Chief Wiggins celebrated his 37th anniversary with the city's fire department about a month ago. Many of his own ideas are incorporated in the one-story station.

Many of the city's old-time firefighters were there. The city's first fire engine, a 1912 vintage "500" (gallons-per-minute), a 1925 pumper, and a new $23,787 pumper were on display. Firemen said that the children preferred the older engines. They both had bells to ring.

Chorale's Bach Mass Thrills Here

By BRUCE GALPHIN
The Robert Shaw Chorale's performance of the Bach B Minor at Emory University Sunday was a wedding of perfection to perfection.

The mass, rarely performed in its entirety because of its length and difficulty, is perhaps the greatest monument of choral literature. (To the best memories available, this was the first complete performance in Atlanta.)

DUE RECOGNITION
And Shaw's organization was at its spine-tingling, awe-inspiring peak.

Perhaps it is superfluous pedantry to analyze the elements of perfection, but these points deserve recognition:

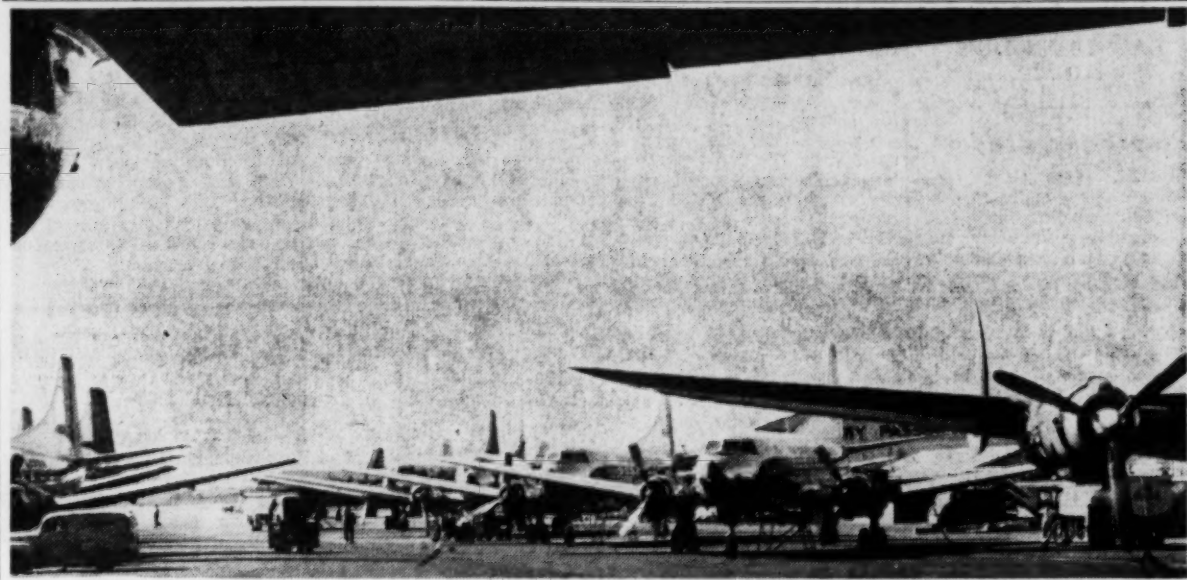

Almost diabolical perfection of attacks and cut-offs (you would swear Shaw whip-lashed the singers nightly to achieve such control); purity of intonation; balance of chorus and orchestra which was almost uncanny.

SMALL CHORUS

Shaw chose — wisely — to use a relatively small chorus (36, plus five soloists), and further added to the balance of choirs by an unusual juxtaposition of male and female voices.

The conductor's tempos, notably in the "Christe Eleison" and "Cum Sancto Spiritu" sections, were faster than is customarily heard, but this is no source of complaint, since they added to the driving impact of the over-all interpretation.

Special praise is due the contralto, bass, violin, flute and oboe soloists.

TYPICAL RAMP SHOT AT ATLANTA'S MUNICIPAL AIRPORT SHOWS PLANES LINED UP IN DROVES
Dobbins Air Force Base Also One of the Busiest in This Area, Figures from Officials Disclose

Atlanta Air Traffic Leads South in Volume, Safety

Atlanta's air traffic is at once the safest and most crowded in the South.

This fact is brought home in the results of a joint survey by the Federal Aviation Agency and Dobbins Air Force Base.

Every plane that takes off within 250 miles of the city, in any direction, is included in what FAA calls the Atlanta Air Route Traffic Control Center. The FAA says it is the fourth busiest air traffic center in the country.

The busiest times of the day: between 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. And from 5 to 8 p.m.

The FAA says there are between 350 and 400 planes in the skies over Atlanta during these periods.

Flights into and out of the Atlanta airport, if equally spaced over a 24-hour period, would mean that a plane was either landing or taking off every 2.8 minutes, the air control agency says.

The other busy landing field in the area is Dobbins Air Force Base. Dobbins says it averages 335 flights a day, against 517 landings and takeoffs at the Atlanta Airport.

Dobbins has made an important contribution to the Air Force's low accident rate of the past few years. The base has recorded a flat zero accident rate in 100,000 hours of flying time. The same no-accident record is reported by FAA for the area as a whole.

Over-all, the Air Force had an average accident rate of 8.3 last year, the lowest in history.

The biggest drop, says Dobbins, has occurred since the advent of jet aviation. In the first blush of its youth — just after World War I — the Army aviation division of the Signal Corps recorded 506 accidents per 100,000 hours of flying time.

The safety of military and commercial aviation, particularly in a congested area like Atlanta, is attributed by Dobbins to a program of close cooperation between the FAA and military air control agencies.

The setup is mandatory under federal air traffic rules. The Air Force likes the idea, Dobbins says. It enables a base to take advantage of the FAA's far-flung navigational net. The FAA in return, using Air Force radio navi-

10,368,396 Pencils and 60 Years Later

Since 1900, Ivan Allen has bought pencils by the millions from the Eberhard Faber Pen & Pencil Company, makers of quality products since 1849.

You may have received an order of their fine pencils in your office today. Chances are you got what you ordered and when you wanted it. Dependable service and quality merchandise have enabled us to increase the number of satisfied customers during each of the last 60 years.

Since 1900, however, there have been a few times when we might have made errors in filling orders. But we console ourselves with the fact that, after all, there must be a reason why someone put erasers on pencils.

New Faces At Capitol Foreseen

tant, but the longer they stayed, the more they talked themselves into backing up their old stand."

He said that the "court of last resort is the people."

It was at this point—just before the program ended—that Hughes made his prediction: "There just might be some new faces on Capitol Hill and even in Washington. The schools belong to the people and they will have the last word."

The program started off with a discussion about school teacher salaries. Rep. Hall said the State of Georgia believed the key to the school program is the classroom teacher. "If it requires more money to keep our teachers, the public will support whatever is necessary for good schools — a tax increase or whatever is necessary to raise our teachers' pay to the national average," Hall said.

Hughes said the GEA schedule—which had met the approval of the State Board of Education—called for a more than $1,000 increase in teachers' salaries by 1962. The average increase would be about $1,100, the educator said.

The association secretary said that the whole of the GEA was disappointed in the increased amount appropriated for teachers. "We thought that more money would be available. Our fondest hope was that $500 (per teacher) would be available on Jan. 1."

Hughes said the "splinter group"—first formed by some Warner Robins teachers who asked for a $1,000 raise—was "no more. We are all under the GEA and are all working toward the planned steps."

The two men were questioned by Bruce Galphin and Jack Nelson, staff writers for The Constitution. Moderator was George Boswell, associate editor.

Russell Vows Dixie Will Defeat Rights

country against the people of the South."

ASKS FOR HALT

Russell said he was never more serious in his life than when he took the floor of the Senate Saturday to beg Negro leaders and their spokesmen in Congress to call a halt to racial demonstrations in the South.

"The people of the South feel that they are being baited and made the objective of a campaign of political bidding for minority vote," the Georgian declared. He said he is proud of the restraint Southerners have shown and proud of how the police in the South have handled these disturbances.

The nation has been deceived about the civil rights bills before Congress, Russell said, and he and his Southern colleagues will undertake to talk against it until they can get the truth across to the country.

PEOPLE TO WAKE UP

"In time," he said, "the people will wake up to the fact that they have been sold a bill of goods."

Russell said he objects even to a voting rights bill, which he said is unnecessary and indicts the whole people of the South on charges that are unfounded and false.

Only in "four or five counties" of the South is there any mass deprivation of Negro voting rights, Russell said as he branded the Civil Rights Commission report as exaggerated.

NEUTRAL ON VOTING

The senator said he is not opposed to qualified Negroes voting, but frankly added that he neither encourages nor discourages them. The 15th Amendment to the Constitution guarantees the right to vote, Russell said, and he maintained this right can be guaranteed in state courts without the need for federal action.

Russell very carefully avoided any criticism of Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson in questioning by the panel of college students.

Russell also refused to say whether he thinks the civil rights issue has hurt Johnson in the South. He did say he thinks it possible the issue could split the Democratic Party, but that if it does, the South should pick a younger man than himself as its standard bearer.

MRS. FOR 'MISGUIDED'

He sidestepped an attempt to get him to criticize Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt other than to say that she is a "very misguided person" and a "typical bleeding heart" on the racial issue. Russell called her a "great lady and the widow of a great President who was a friend of mine."

Franklin Roosevelt, he reminded his audience, never in his years in the White House sent up a civil rights bill to Congress.

KEATING SEES CLOTURE

In another development Sunday, Sen. Keating (R-N.Y.) predicted on a telecast for New York stations that "it will be necessary, sooner or later" to invoke a Senate rule cutting off the civil rights debate.

He said such action would not be needed for another "week or 10 days," however. And he conceded that cloture to halt the filibuster would not be easily accomplished.

In this connection, Sen. Ellender (D-La.), said he was ready to speak "as long as may be necessary" to block passage of the civil rights legislation during this election-year session.

STAYING IN SESSION

But majority leader Johnson has said the Senate will "stay in session until a vote is obtained." He expressed hope there might be a vote as early as Monday's session, scheduled to begin at noon.

Johnson and Senate Republican Leader Dirksen (Ill.) ordered the 24-hour schedule, which Southerners attacked as an unfair effort to wear them down.

Meanwhile a move for possible compromise developed Sunday as some Southern senators including Sen. Johnson turned to House leaders in an unusual move to speed House action on a civil rights bill.

The move seemed to be designed to get a more "moderate" civil rights bill before the Senate before the senators are forced to vote on legislation endorsing school integration.

In line with this thinking, they sent an emissary to Rep. Smith (D-Va.) asking him to reconvene the House Rules Committee and advance House consideration of civil rights to March 3 rather than the scheduled hearings beginning March 10. Smith has given no answer on the proposal.

Johnson obviously believes that a substitution of a House measure for the Senate version might result in final enactment of what he has called a "reasonable" bill.

LAW DEAN DIES

Emory Law School's Dean Hepburn Dies

William McGuffey Hepburn, 59, dean of the Emory University law school since 1950, died Sunday in Emory hospital of a heart ailment aggravated by influenza.

Dean Hepburn, who came to Emory after heading the University of Alabama law school from 1930 to 1950, was the author of many articles for law reviews and a legal textbook, "Hepburn's Cases on Torts."

He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, and attended University of Indiana, Yale, Harvard and the Sorbonne in Paris. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national academic honorary fraternity; Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary activities fraternity; Phi Delta Phi, law fraternity and Beta Theta Pi, social fraternity.

Dean Hepburn was also a member of the American Bar Assn., the Georgia and Alabama Bar Associations and the American Association of University Professors. He was a public member of the Regional War Labor Board and served as vice chairman of that group from 1943-45. He was also a member of the National Wage Stabilization Board of Washington, D.C.

Dean Hepburn also served as a member of the Governor's Prison Study Commission, and of the Alabama Board of Bar Examiners, and was a member of the Commission on Higher Education for Negroes in Alabama.

When Dean Hepburn left the University of Alabama to come to Emory, the Alabama Legislature honored him by passing a resolution expressing regret at his leaving the state university.

He was the great-grandson of William H. McGuffey who authored "McGuffey's Reader" of elementary school fame. He was a member of the Episcopal Church. His home was at 1338 Harvard Rd., N.E.

He is survived by his wife, the former Helen Bridget; two sons, William M. Hepburn Jr., Bristol, Tenn., and Andrew M. Hepburn, Atlanta; four daughters, Mrs. Lewis Wirtz, Montana, Mrs. Victor Burdo, Staten Island, N.Y.; Mrs. Catherine Hoar, Atlanta, and Mrs. Anthony Johnson, Washington, D.C.; three sisters, Mrs. S. Roger Tyler, Huntington, M. Va.;

Mrs. Ralph Evans, Palo Alto, Calif., and Mrs. Ben B. Ross, Bloomington, Ind.; and two brothers, Andrew H. Hepburn, New York, N.Y., and Dr. Charles K. Hepburn, Indianapolis, Ind.

Funeral services will be announced by A. S. Turner & Sons.

Officials to Confer on Manpower

Federal, state and local officials will convene here Wednesday to hear discussions of national policy on the use of manpower in emergencies.

Judge Thomas Goodman, director of regional headquarters of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization at Thomasville, will preside at the opening session.

Meetings will be held at the Academy of Medicine auditorium on West Peachtree street, N.W.

Goodman said the purpose of the meetings is to delineate responsibilities of labor, management and government units in dealing with mobilization problems in a limited or general war or under conditions of extreme international tension.

learning of the landing gear trouble.

The other crew member was Frank Haffner the copilot.

The passengers were Lester O. Schriver, 65, of Washington, D.C., executive vice president of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters; Miss Norma King, 21, of Youngstown, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Blaine of Los Altos, Calif.; Joseph Kuharich, 46, of Tuolumne, Calif., and Violet Gamble, 55, of Lansing, Mich.

Kuharich said he and four other passengers opened the safety exits just before the landing. He said the passengers strapped themselves in their seats and put their heads down in pillows.

The normal passenger load for the plane is 40. The craft was diverted to Olathe because it is close to the main TWA overhaul base at Kansas City and because of firefighting equipment and other facilities at Olathe.

Jesus' Finest Hour Was on Cross

QUESTION: I can't understand how Jesus could have said, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me." If He was the Son of God, how could He shrink from His divine duty? This has been a stumbling block to me. Can you explain?—F. M.

ANSWER: If Jesus had not been deity, these words would never have crossed His lips. He was God in a human body—a body as subject to suffering as yours and mine. He knew full well the suffering He was to endure, and His human frame shrunk from the agony of Calvary for a fleeting moment.

But in the next breath He said: "Nevertheless not as I will, but as Thou wilt." Wrapped up in that word "nevertheless" was the triumph of the cross. The fact that He dreaded it, even though He was resolved to go through with it, only underscores the magnitude of the suffering of Calvary. What He was to endure was so great that even Christ, Who had endured poverty, the desertion of His followers, an unjust trial and the ridicule of the crowd, shuddered when He faced the ordeal.

The stature of Jesus is revealed in that one word "nevertheless." He was saying: "Let come what may; the lash, the spikes, the crown of thorns, and the thrust of the spear. Nevertheless, if it takes all that, Thy will be done." This was not defeat—this was His finest hour. His greatest triumph. And through His death we have forgiveness of sin and new life.

Stanga Trial Opening

CEDARTOWN — Mrs. Loraine Ivey Tate Stanga, 28, goes on trial here Monday in the 1958 slaying of Lawrenceville undertaker Virgil Gray.

Mrs. Stanga was indicted along with William Hoyt Ledford, 43. Ledford was found guilty on the charge and sentenced to death after a trial here last May.

The state is charging that Mrs. Stanga and Ledford beat up and robbed Gray at Mrs. Stanga's College Park apartment, put him in the back of a car and later shot him to death in an isolated part of Polk County.

The body was found in Arkansas, where, the state contends, Mrs. Stanga and Ledford dumped it.

Spring Street PTA Pushes Voter Drive

The Spring Street School PTA will continue its program this week to register all the association's members as voters, association president Leonard Fisher said.

Fisher said the organization got more than 75 of its members signed up last week in connection with its voter registration drive, and has about 140 more to go.

At least one carload of members per day signed up at the Fulton County registrar's office, Fisher reported.

Disarmament Prayers Urged

LONDON (UPI)—Church leaders of all faiths in Britain called Sunday for special prayers for the 10 - nation disarmament committee due to begin its work in Geneva March 15.

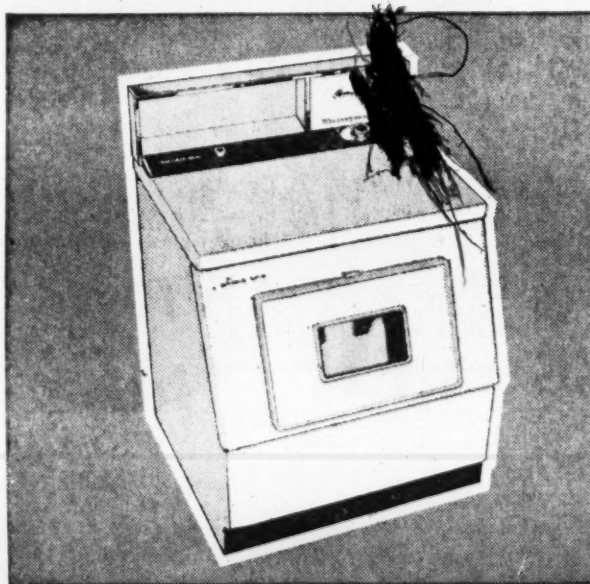

A statement from the leaders of Christian and Jewish faiths said "we call upon all Christian and Jewish people and congregations to pray for the committee that by the providence of God it may be brought to a happy issue."

SEC'S PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Allan Johnson Making All the Right Stops

By AL THOMY

Allan (with an a) Johnson is one of those little guys who was here a while ago but just met himself going thataway after coming from over yonder.

His movements remind one of a pin ball which makes all the right stops and lights up the jackpot.

The Georgia sophomore made all the right stops Saturday night at Gainesville, Fla., where he scored 20 points—all in the second half—to beat Florida 75-73 and give the Bulldogs their best record (12-12) in 10 years.

His layup in the final minute was the clincher.

Just five nights earlier he scored 29 points in Georgia's loss to Vanderbilt. When the 5-10 blond, a high school immortal at Atlanta Brown, fouled out of the game with a minute remaining he was given the most resounding ovation in the history of Woodruff Hall, according to oldtimers in the audience.

"It was Allan's greatest game," remarked Georgia Coach Red Lawson. "He is developing into one of the very best guards in the SEC."

For his inspired effort against the Commodores and winning touch at Gainesville, Johnson is The Constitution's Southeastern Conference Player of the Week.

Allan's success story was born in adversity.

Last year as a freshman he decided to quit Georgia and matriculate at Oglethorpe so he could be close to home. Fortunately for Georgia he changed his mind.

ALLAN JOHNSON
Now You See Him...

Mickey LOGUE

Skinny, Scrappy Champs

A lean and hungry Auburn team that didn't know its own weaknesses or recognize defeat woke up Sunday morning on top of the Southeastern Conference basketball world.

It was a torturous climb for the Tigers, who won the ninth straight league game it took to get them there in the last second of the 1960 season.

Logue

The clincher of seven comeback victories came in overtime against a dedicated Alabama team in Montgomery Saturday night. Coupled with Georgia Tech's loss to Vanderbilt, it meant Auburn's first SEC basketball championship.

It also meant a "surprise" shower for Coach Joel Eaves, who emerged dripping, grinning, accosting his jubilant players with: "All right. Who's got it in for me? Who turned on the cold water?"

A day later, Eaves sat in his living room in Auburn and chuckled whimsically. "I guess I should be thankful to be out of hot water. I don't guess anybody's ever had more close ball games."

Auburn won two games by one point, two by two and one by three in the decisive stretch drive. A pair were overtime triumphs. All told, Auburn won 10 games by four points or fewer.

A few minutes after Ray Groover's twisting layup conquered Alabama for the crown, Mrs. Eaves turned to a pregnant friend and sighed: "It's a wonder your baby didn't come tonight."

It was that kind of game and that kind of season for the Tigers.

Eaves Wishes Tech Success in NCAA Play

"We are just happy and humbly grateful for the good fortune that came to us," Coach Eaves continued. "We know that we've been lucky because we had to be."

"But we also know that our ball players played real well under pressure and a lot of it. They came from behind in seven of the last nine games. I don't think they're any cheese champs. It's the third year we've had a chance to win the title and I guess the percentages went our way."

"We are honestly not gloating about Tech's loss because a year ago in Knoxville, Tenn., we sat in the same boat and know how tough it is."

"As I told Whack (Tech Coach Hyder) last week, I hope Tech has every possible success in the NCAA tournament. I'd like to see his boys go all the way."

Probation knocked Auburn out of the NCAA bid.

Telegrams piled up and well-wishers began to put in extra innings on the telephone. Eaves reminded each caller of those who made the championship possible.

"Give all the credit you can to the boys," he said. "They deserve it. Once they throw that ball up, the coach is sitting in a chair at the end of the court. It's the players who win or lose it."

"I don't believe there ever has been a finer bunch of boys anywhere than we had this season. An athlete has to discipline himself, and they did."

Hart, Gilbert, Fibbe, Groover, Vaughn...

There probably has never been a shorter, skinnier, scrappier collection of SEC champions than these Tigers. Let Eaves introduce them:

Captain Henry Hart: "He's a clutch ball player. Henry can help his teammate get the shot. His pass helped Groover get that last basket."

Porter Gilbert: "He's a perfect ball player to handle. Sick or hurt, he always says he's ready to go. He won't shoot without a good chance to make it. Porter shot once and hit it against Alabama."

Jimmy Fibbe: "He is extremely smart out there. He has a wonderful pair of hands and tremendous jumping ability. Jimmy can make the unorthodox shot. Remember the hooks against Kentucky?"

Ray Groover: "He's strong, willing and can go all night and part of the next morning. He is an improved player because he wants to improve. And we look for Ray to improve some more."

David Vaughn: "We figured before the season for our ball club to amount to anything, Dave had to take more of his share of the load. He was our leading scorer and rebounder until injured. When we really needed him Saturday, he played a good game on a bum leg."

John Helminger: "He did a good job on the boards for us. When Vaughn got hurt, we had to have somebody and John came in and did a good job though he wasn't ready. He did it on trying more than ability."

Eaves also had kind words for reserves Bill Ross and Bayward McManus.

"They're all an unselfish bunch of boys," he said.

They're the champions.

GMA's Baker Equals Freestyle Record

Baker of Georgia Military Academy tied the National 50-yard freestyle record in the Eastern Interscholastic Swimming Championships at Lawrenceville, N. J., Saturday. His time was 22.8.

Baker also won a first place in the 100-yard freestyle in the time of 52.5.

Soviet Snaps Skate Mark In Exhibition

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) Eugeni Grishin, the flying Russian army lieutenant, unofficially bettered his world 500-meter, speed skating record Sunday with a time of :39.6 seconds in an exhibition at the Winter Olympics oval.

Grishin, winner of two gold medals during regular Olympic competition here, holds the official record of :40.2. He set it at the 1956 Winter Games in Italy and tied it here this week.

Grishin almost surely would have set an official world record during the Olympic 500, but he slipped on the last turn, losing perhaps half of a second. He still managed to equal his world record.

Wright 72 Grabs Title In Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Wright, a tall power hitter from San Diego, Calif., shot a steady 2-over-par 72 Sunday to win the $7,500 Tampa Women's Open golf championship by one stroke.

The victory, second for Wright in four tournaments of the 1960 Ladies Professional Golf Assn., tour was worth $1,247.35.

Patty Berg, veteran professional from St. Andrews, Ill., appeared to be the winner after nine holes of the final round. But she took a 7 on the par 4 11th hole and ended the day with a 74.

Ziske shot a 70 Sunday. She and Berg each collected $860.70.

Wright had rounds of 72, 73 and 72. The 14th annual tournament, originally scheduled for 72 holes, was cut to three rounds after a rainstorm washed out the opening Thursday.

Mickey Wright, 72-73-72-217 51,247.35; Patty Berg, 74-74-74-218, $860.70; Joyce Ziske, 76-76-70-218, $860.70; Betty Rawls, 72-72-72-216, $860.70; Marie Mackenzie, 73-76-72-221, $516.80; Beverly Hanson, 72-73-72-222, $409.45; Fay Crocker, 76-73-73-222, $409.45; Mary Lena Faulk, 78-76-69-221, $338.20; Ruth Jensen, 75-76-74-224, $281; Jo Ann Prentice, 78-74-73-225, $239.85; Gloria Armstrong, 74-76-76-226, $213.75; Louise Suggs, 79-75-76-226, $213.75; Mari Lyn Smith, 74-74-75-229, $112.50; Bonnie Randolph, 79-76-75-230, $151.50; Kathy Cornelius, 74-79-77-230, $151.50; Barbara Bremack, 78-76-76-230, $151.50; Kathy Whitworth, 81-77-77-232, $95.50; Shirley Englehorn, 81-77-73-231, $95; Jackie Funn, 81-80-77-232, Wanda Sanchez, 83-77-82-233; Gloria Ficht, 79-78-76-233.

This season he rode the bench until starter Frank Clark, another soph, sustained a crippling injury in the Georgia Tech game Jan. 2. Lawson shuffled his lineup until Johnson rotated to the starting order in the Sietson game of Jan. 18.

In 12 games since that fateful night, the little scooter has averaged 13 points per appearance and breathed fire and confidence into the Bulldog attack. It was inconceivable he should grab 12 rebounds against Kentucky and nine against Vanderbilt—two towering teams—but he did just that.

Vanderbilt guards Bill Johnson and Bobby Bland scratched their heads in amazement after the game in Athens last Monday.

"Johnson is certainly one of the finest guards I've seen," said B. Johnson. "I didn't know he could shoot like that!"

"Outside of Tech's Roger Kaiser, Johnson is the toughest guard I have tried to stay with," said Bland.

From Tallahassee, where his Bulldogs end the season against FSU Monday night, Lawson said he was pleased with Johnson's selection as POTW.

"He has come fast after having troubles early in the season," said Lawson. "He has the natural movements now. Allan really did us a great job on the press here Saturday, tying up Paul Mosny good. If he continues to progress, I'll say he will be compared favorably with Zippy Morocco and Joe Jordan before he is through."

Johnson's torrid week earned him The Constitution accolade, over Auburn Capt. Henry Hart, who directed the Tigers' championship drive over Tennessee and Alabama, and Vols' Dalen Shwalter, leader in upset of mighty Kentucky.

Hyder Cites Bobby Dews

By MICKEY LOGUE
Georgia Tech is down but not out.

There was both regret and hope in Coach Whack Hyder's words Sunday as he looked back on a bad night at Nashville and forward to the NCAA basketball tournament.

Tech stumbled on the last lap to a share of the Southeastern Conference championship Saturday night, losing to Vanderbilt, 62-57.

Auburn got by Alabama by the skin of its shuffle in overtime, and Tennessee nailed Kentucky for the first time in a decade.

The loss left Tech 11-3 in the SEC to champion Auburn's 12-2. Kentucky is 10-4.

"We played below par and so did Vanderbilt," Hyder said. "Both teams played fine defensive games, but were offensively."

Hyder feels the tension of battling for the title put a strain on contenders Tech, Auburn and Kentucky that hurt their play.

All three played poor games Saturday.

Hyder had words of praise for regular guard Bobby Dews, who swiped the Commodores dizzy in closing minutes, Wayne Richards and reserve John Gher.

The 21 over-all victories are the most any Tech basketball team has ever won, and the school makes its NCAA hard-wood tournament debut in Louisville March 11 against the Notre Dame-Ohio University winner.

"We know our season schedule was tough," Hyder continued, "and the NCAA tournament will be even tougher. We played half our games this season well enough to make a good showing at Louisville. If we can get a little more out of our kids than they have in 'em, we have a chance to do all right."

After taking a rest Monday, the Jackets will drill Tuesday, Thursday and Friday this week. They plan two scrimmages with the freshmen during the 13 days before competing in the tournament.

Despite being held to 16 points

—a good night's work for anybody else—Captain Roger Kaiser won the SEC scoring championship with a 22.5 average. This and his 586 total established new Tech school records.

Hyder took one last look at what might have been before conceding.

Bulldogs To Fire On 10-Year Jinx

By AL THOMY

Often feared, seldomed humiliated and never dull, Georgia's basketball Bulldogs stand on the threshold of their finest showing in 10 years.

Victory over Florida State University's Seminoles at Tallahassee Monday night would give Georgia a 13-12 record and its first winning season since 1950.

The 1959-60 Bulldog edition has already given Red Lawson his most successful record (12-12) in a decade of coaching.

If the Bulldogs finish with a winning season Monday night, the task will have come the hard way—on the road.

Georgia balanced its record with an exciting 75-73 decision over Florida in the Gators' lair Saturday night behind the deadly second-half firing of Allan Johnson, will of the wisp sophomore guard from Atlanta. He scored 20 points, all in the second half, and his bucket with a minute re-

Russian Aids U.S. To Ice Hockey Gold

Suggests 'Air' To Spark Rally

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—The United States hockey team, pepped up by whiffs of oxygen suggested by a Russian, exploded for six goals in the last 15 minutes Sunday to beach Czechoslovakia 9-4 and clinch America's first Winter Olympic hockey championship.

The gold medal collected by Uncle Sam's never-say-die hockey players on this closing day of the eighth winter games was the third for the United States and gained the Americans a third place finish in the unofficial over-all team standings.

Russia, more than doubling the score of the runner-up nation, won the games with 16½ points. Sweden finished second with 7½, the U.S. third with 7½ and the combined East-West German team fourth with 7½.

The Russians failed to add to their total of seven gold medals Sunday but picked up four points for a third place finish in hockey and three points for a fourth place in the concluding event, the 80-meter special ski jumping.

Helmut Recknagel of East Germany won the jump with near perfect leaps of 93 and 84½ meters (305 and 277 feet)—the first longest in Olympic history. He amassed 227.2 points on style and distance against 222.6 for Niilo Halonin, 19, a Finnish student, who was second. Otto Leodolter of Austria was third while the best American finish was seventh place for Ansten Samuelstuen of Boulder, Colo.

But again it was the plucky U.S. hockey team, this time with an assist from the Russian hockey captain, Nikolai (Solly) Sologubov, that stole the show from the other events.

Worn out after their thrilling victories over favored Canada (2-1) and defending champion Russia (3-2), the listless Yanks trailed Czechoslovakia 4-3 at the end of the second period.

Between periods, Sologubov—a star for Russia in its loss to the U.S. Saturday—went to the American dressing room and suggested they use oxygen for some added pep in this energy-draining 6,200-foot altitude.

It worked. The Americans tore the Czechs apart in the last period with six goals, three by Roger Christian, an 180-pound carpenter from Warroad, Minn., who also had scored a first period goal.

Later, Canada defeated Russia 8-5 for second place in hockey while Sweden took fifth place with an 8-2 rout of winless Germany.

Bright sun and warm temperatures drew 25,000 to the valley—for the closing hockey games, ski jump, and final ceremonies in which the youth of the world was called to assemble four years from now in Innsbruck, Austria, for the ninth winter games.

The $22,000,000 spectacle here drew 740 athletes from 30 nations, and an 11-day attendance close to 250,000.

In addition to the surprising victory in hockey, the United States took two gold medals in figure skating. David Jenkins, Colorado Springs, Colo., won the men's title and announced he was retiring to pursue his medical studies at Western Reserve in Cleveland. Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., won the women's crown.

The American hockey team finished the championship round-robin tournament with a spotless 5-0 record highlighted by a 2-1 victory over Canada and Saturday's 3-2 defeat of Russia.

But for two periods it looked as if the coveted crown would

Quality Fabrics at Huge Savings

Frank Hicks, manager of the Southern Upholsterers factory, examines one of the many fabrics featured in the firm's gigantic clearance of roll ends. Although the savings offered are the greatest ever, Southern's customers will receive the same highest quality workmanship, same service, same guarantee of satisfaction—as well as their choice of one of Southern's liberal payment plans. To see samples of these fabrics in your home, day or evening, call Jackson 5-6868. There is no charge or obligation for this service.

REUPHOLSTER NOW FOR SPRING

Southern Offers Unusual Savings On Roll-End of Fine Fabrics

Homemakers who waited until now to redecorate their living rooms will reap an extra saving of one-third or more during Southern Upholsterers' gigantic clearance of roll end and discontinued patterns of fine upholstery fabrics from America's leading upholstery mills. Atlantans are urged to call early to take advantage of these special values offered by Southern, the recognized leader in the reupholstering industry for over 18 years.

The fabric range includes satins, stripes, modern textures, brocades, tapestries, velvets, nylons, boucles, matelassés and heavy leather-patterned plastics. They are the kind seen on only the most expensive furniture. Included in the group are many of the new synthetic weaves that wear so well and are easily cleaned.

Here are a few of the typical savings in Southern Upholsterers' huge clearance: A roll-end of brown heavy plastic to cover a sofa bed, regularly $104.50—special clearance price — $59.50. A roll-end of green modern texture to cover a sofa and chair, regularly $176.50 — special clearance price—$107.50. A roll-end of beige heavy linen to cover a large chair, regularly $66.50 — special clearance price—$36.50!

Prices include all labor and materials for reupholstering plus

Southern's famous exclusive method of complete frame-to-fabric rebuilding. Southern also offers a Home Decorating Service whereby a trained decorator will come to your home and help you choose the color and texture of materials most harmonious with its surroundings. Of great help in the selection is Southern's famous Fabric Selector with its giant-sized samples which may be laid over your furniture to get the total effect.

Southern's Home Decorating Service is available to anyone without charge by simply calling JA. 5-6868 and asking for an appointment by day or evening.

Southern Upholsterers was founded before the war on the theory that old furniture is often superior in material and construction to the more modern furniture—and that it can be rebuilt better than new at a fraction of the cost of new furniture! Today, as Atlanta's oldest and largest reupholstering factory, Southern Upholsterers have recovered and rebuilt more than 125,000 pieces of furniture, or over 40,000 satisfied customers. With each piece goes Southern's written guarantee, good for one year against defect in materials and workmanship.

Public inspection of their plant at 51 Mangum St., SW, is invited.

FREE!—In addition to tremendous savings on fabrics, Southern offers free* with any order to reupholster a two-piece suite, this handsome deluxe electric percolator. Six-cup capacity, the percolator has an aluminum mirror finish, insulated cord and plug and is considered a $10.95 value. Call JA. 5-6868 (day or night) for free decorator service.

For the living room of your dreams, call JA. 5-6868 today, and save during Southern Upholsterers' spectacular roll-end clearance.

Butler Buildings Lowest-Cost Way To Build Well—Rainwater

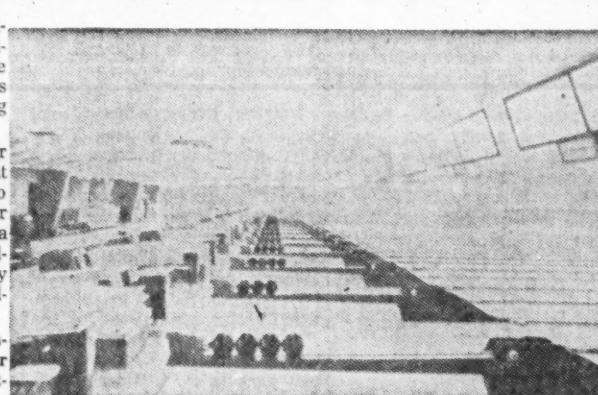

Because of their great versatility and adaptability, Butler buildings are today used to house hundreds of different businesses across the nation—from bowling alleys to warehouses.

In this area, the Rainwater Construction Co., 1905 Piedmont Circle, NE, is equipped to do the complete "turnkey" job for the business that decides upon a Butler building. As Butler building distributor and erector, they have erected many Butler buildings in and around Atlanta.

Today, as pointed out by Rainwater officials, with the Butler building system you can build attractive factories, smart looking commercial buildings and tastefully designed churches or schools, and still realize economies and advantages that Butler pre-engineering and mass production offer.

Here's why: the Butler building system uses standard Butler components to form the structural frame and roof system—provide a basic "core" around which your building can be designed.

Pre-engineered to meet uniform, state and municipal building codes, precision fabricated to permit fast, bolt-together assembly, Butler components eliminate much preliminary engineering work... thus save weeks and months of costly construction time. This enables a businessman to get into operation and start earning profits far sooner than most traditional construction.

Clear-Span Design

Thanks to Butler's clear-span design, there isn't a single column to mar the beautiful interior of this bowling alley. It's another example of how distinctive Butler buildings can be both functional and attractive. Butler buildings are erected in this area by Rainwater Construction Co., 1905 Piedmont Circle, NE.

The clean, functional lines of the Butler loadbearing skeleton make it easy to create dramatic facades and sidewalls with low-cost curtain walls of glass, stone, brick, wood or any other material that suits the owner's taste or budget.

Butler buildings are noted for strength and sturdiness. In many factories, the Butler rigid frames provide strength to support cranes, overhead installations of power and utility lines.

Probably the Butler's greatest advantage is the spacious, column-free interior it provides. This makes it possible to plan dramatic display areas and layout traffic patterns that will encourage buying. There are no columns or load-bearing partitions to create narrow aisles... bottlenecks in traffic... or to obstruct customers' vision.

Businessmen who need an entirely new plant, or just planning to expand their present facilities, are invited to investigate Butler buildings fully. Their remarkable adaptability and speed of construction has made them recognized across the country as not only the cheapest way to build—but also the lowest-cost way to build well!

Rainwater Construction Company's telephone number is TR. 5-0548. Location is 1905 Piedmont Circle, NE, Atlanta 9, Ga.

Cuts Floor Maintenance Much as 90%

Did you know that many business firms and institutions are reducing their biggest single floor maintenance expense—labor cost—as much as 90 per cent with the new self-propelled "Clarke-A-matic" floor maintainer?

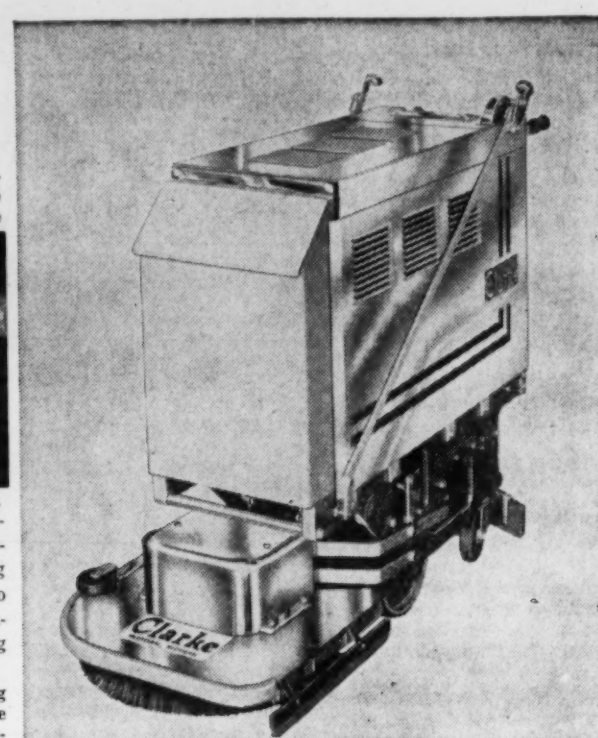

John F. Nance Jr., president of Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., distributors, points out that "Clarke-A-matic's" time-saving, labor-saving, one-pass operation does the job of cleaning your floors automatically—20 to 50 times faster than hand cleaning—leaving floors sparkling clean and sanitary!

Possibly no other floor-cleaning machine has won such immediate widespread acceptance by thousands of owners throughout the U.S.A. The ruggedly-constructed Clarke-A-matic floor maintainers, available from Sanitary Supply in battery-operated, gasoline or electric-powered models, are establishing records of unmatched cleaning efficiency, speed of operation and dependability wherever they go to work.

The Clarke-A-matic takes all of the guesswork out of cleaning floors. It automatically meters the solution of the floor, scrubs thoroughly, picks up dirt and solution, and dries all in one easy operation. It propels itself, cleaning a 20-inch swath at 155 lineal feet per minute.

Mr. Nance said that the Model PS-20BP Clarke-A-matic, shown in accompanying photo, is proving to be the most popular machine among most users. Powered by specially designed batteries, this unit has no cable reel to obstruct the operator's vision, no electric cable to restrict maneuverability and no gasoline engine. Hence, no noise, no exhaust, no fumes, no odor. Clarke-A-matic's special heavy-duty batteries give up to six hours of continuous service—the equivalent of a full eight-hour schedule. And they charge quickly and are soon ready for another full day's work.

"The Clarke-A-matic cleans all kinds and types of floors quickly and easily," stated Mr. Nance. "It is perfect for every floor care job in semi-congested or open areas in schools, hospitals, industrial plants, hotels, churches, garages, department stores, banks, office buildings, public buildings, supermarkets, warehouses, transportation terminals—in fact, anywhere floors are maintained."

The savings in labor costs are truly remarkable, he said. For instance, it has been determined that it takes one man with a mop something like five hours to clean a floor area of 5,000 square feet. One man with a Clarke-A-matic can do the same job in 20-25 minutes. It would take one man wielding a mop steadily about 50 hours to clean 50,000 square feet. The Clarke-A-matic user does it in four hours!

There are numerous Clarke-A-matic owners in Atlanta, and the number is growing steadily. Interested businessmen, plant superintendents and custodial officials are invited to contact Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., and ask for a free demonstration on their own floors with no obligation. The Clarke-A-matic is manufactured by the Clarke Sanding Machine Co., Muskegon, Mich., which maintains authorized sales representatives and service branches in principal cities.

For demonstration and full information, Sanitary Supply's telephone number is JA. 4-3471. They are located at Rhodes Building Annex, Atlanta 3, Ga.

Peach State Tour of Europe Again Offered by AAA

Boots, Bits, Saddles, Spurs...

The J. H. Wilensky Saddlery and Leather Co. has been expanded to take in one of the best selections to be found in the entire South of riding equipment and saddlery of all types.

The store is located at 34 Pryor St., just across the street from the former site of the Kimball House. See story for special introductory offer in fine saddlery.

EQUESTRIANS TAKE NOTE:

W.H. Wilensky Now Features Wide Selection in Saddlery

People are more interested in horseback riding today than they were in the horse and buggy days, according to J. H. Wilensky, well-known Atlanta leather merchant.

For those who are participating in the many horse shows taking place in Atlanta and throughout the state, The Wilensky Saddlery and Leather Co. at 34 Pryor St., SW—right across the street from the former location of the old Kimball House—offers the biggest assortment of riding equipment, bits, spurs, blankets and other accessories.

Along with riding equipment, Wilensky's Pryor street store features a fine line of riding boots, jodhpurs and specialty boots of the sportswear variety. There's a fascinating assortment of whips, as well as a wide variety of packaged material designed for the complete maintenance of every conceivable item made of leather.

An important fact to remember when planning your shopping list for the forthcoming "shows" is that Wilensky's Saddlery and Leathercraft Department is prepared to place a fast-action order for any item that is not in stock, whether it's a particular saddle, pony harness, certain type of bits, or any other accessory.

In announcing the expansion of this department, Mr. Wilensky waxed nostalgic about his favorite city, Atlanta. "During our many years in business we have made fine hand-made harness for all those families who did so much toward building this great area. Out of the soil which they seeded so well has grown this wonderful city of over a million people—a city that is the talk of America today."

"Come to see us as soon as you can," Mr. Jake invites. "You'll find that we live up to the old saying that there's no harm in looking around."

"While you're looking around, we think you'll be like the young draftee in the Army. They can't make me fight," said the draftee. "No," replied his friend, "but they'll put you where the fighting is and from there on out you can use your own judgment."

"There will be no high pressure selling at Wilensky's. We want you to look around—and to use your own judgment. You will be attended courteously and find that the place is most comfortable."

Plans are to expand the saddlery and leathercraft department once the staff becomes acquainted with the needs of horse and pony enthusiasts in this area. Meanwhile, a special introductory offer has been put into effect at the store. During this period a ten per cent discount will be given on all purchases, so drop by 34 Pryor St., SW—see and save.

As Mr. Wilensky points out, the above photographs give a reasonable impression of what the department looks like. But even though Confucius said that one picture is worth a thousand words, a personal visit is bound to pay even larger dividends.

World Travel Department Now Booking

Time was when a trip to Europe took top place in the Wilder Dreams Department. "Some day I'll see Europe" touched off what was considered to be a romantic but impossible goal.

Thanks to the special planning of the Georgia Motor Club, in collaboration with AAA, the trip from Peachtree to Piccadilly can now be made as simple as planning for just about any other vacation.

In a special announcement today, Georgia Motor Club stated that it is now taking reservations for the Second Annual Peach State Tour of Europe. At the 1044 West Peachtree St. headquarters, skilled reservationists are conferring with people throughout the state who plan to make this never-to-be-forgotten trip.

Of keen interest to many Georgians is the fact that the tour will include viewing of the world-famous Passion Play in the tiny village of Oberammergau, Germany. The Oberammergau Passion Play is a great religious presentation performed only at intervals of ten years. Each awe-inspiring performance lasts an entire day.

The Peach State Tour gets off to a flying start on Sept. 5, first lap of a thrilling 23-day trip that takes in most of the historic cities of Western, Central and Southern Europe. The group departs via Delta Airlines to New York and continues on to London on a British Overseas Airways Transatlantic flight. The best of Amsterdam, Bad Ems, Baden Baden, Lucerne, Vaduz, Innsbruck, Venice, Florence, Rapallo, Monte Carlo, Nice, Grenoble, Dijon and Paris is seen along the way.

The remarkable thing about Peach State Tour of Europe is its modest, yet all-inclusive, cost. The traveler's air fare from Atlanta to Europe and return—air steamer, bus transportation on the continent, first-class hotel rooms, all meals, tips, sight-seeing expenditures, visits to famous places, service of guides are all included in the price of $995 per person.

Travel in Europe will be with a

An Unforgettable Performance

The moving Oberammergau Passion Play, held at 10-year intervals in the tiny village of Oberammergau, Germany, is but one of the many never-to-be-forgotten highlights of Georgia small group—maximum 30 persons—aboard de luxe motor coach. With their fellow Georgians, the travelers will enjoy sumptuous meals at sumptuous hotels... shop browse and picture-take at hundreds of Old World points of interest... see Venice via a leisurely gondola ride along the Grand Canal with its magnificent showing of palaces... motor through the Alps, the Black Forest and along the Italian and French Riviera... get a thorough eyeful of one-and-only Paris: the Louvre, Conciergerie (where Marie Antoinette was imprisoned), Fontaine, Sorbonne, Notre Dame Cathedral.

Members of the Peach State Tour will be spared the responsibility of many burdensome routine ordinarily connected with European travel. All local taxes and all tips that are not for services of purely personal nature are covered in the price of the tour. Baggage will be handled at each stop at no additional cost. Schedules will be arranged so that the party may have the maximum amount of leisure time.

Accommodations will be provided in popular first-class hotels throughout Europe. Rooms with bath will be furnished in London, Dijon and Paris. (Private baths at hotels in other cities may be obtained at a slight additional cost, by those who make their reservations early. All meals, many at the world's most famous restaurants, are included without exception. Table d'hôte breakfast, luncheons and dinners will be served according to the customs of each country visited.

If you want to make the fabulous Peach State Tour of Europe, you may make your reservation by filling out and mailing the handy coupon shown on this page in the Georgia Motor Club ad. Don't delay—spaces will be limited. Since available hotel accommodations are limited at the height of the tourist season, please remember that early reservations are required to insure preferred hotel space in Europe.

The coupon, plus a check for $25, is the first step toward the taking of this trip-of-a-lifetime. For detailed information on points of interest included in the itinerary or on any other phase of the trip, phone Georgia Motor Club at TR. 5-7171.

Paris Production Lacks Theme

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

The Paris production of spring fashions is now ready for your viewing but you will hear no theme song.

According to wire stories and digests in retrospect, each couturier has gone his or her separate way and therefore the collections lack a central theme that might be pointed to as the shape, the hemline, the waistline, or the sleeve for this season.

Balenciaga is still king and "no one else in Paris is even second" seems to be the consistent opinion. But the only definite words to describe his creations were so ambiguous as to be applicable to any collection of any year of his. They were "effortless clothes," more beautiful and elegant while wearable with closer-to-the-body lines. But most reports conceded that every little Balenciaga seam means something.

This man, who invented the chemise and has never stopped making the unfitted dress, now has given the chemise shape without a radical switch on female anatomy. He has dropped the waistline on dresses in the front and even lower in the back. The skirt joins at the line, usually shirred on and the result is a long willowy torso. Shoulders of his suits are broad but not exaggeratedly so. Jackets are any length, molded to the bosom and natural waistline in front but straight in back. His hemlines are at what is called the "perfect length"—just below the knee.

Most reports felt that the Paris collections were conservative and cautious, developed from last season with the Givenchy princess line found everywhere in Paris except at Givenchy's.

His general silhouette was loose and easy with dresses few and far between and often sleeveless and sometimes belted with a string of satin. There were a lot of fitted-front, loose-back chemises. His new shape was at the shoulder of coats and suits—much wider and squarer.

The flat look, reported early as Dior's new look by designer Yves Saint Laurent, because of it was most apparent there, may have been over-emphasized as a fashion trend.

The Dior daytime clothes consisted mainly of loosely overbloused dresses and tunic-style models with many of them flaring out in maternity styles. Suit jackets had roomy armholes and comfortable skirts and many jackets were collarless with necklines uncluttered.

The flat-chested line at Dior was in sharp contrast to the flattered bosoms lines by Pierre Cardin and Jules Francois Crahay of Nina Ricci.

With a twirl of pleats, a new fluidity, Crahay left his paper-doll silhouettes behind him and embarked on the new loose, sometimes princess line. Where other designers showed a preference for jackets that are long and still longer, Crahay chopped his off at the waistline, slashed the neckline down in a V, bound the whole thing off in a contrasting color and put it over a dress or skirt swinging with pleats. Most of his dresses were pleated on top, on bottom, and everywhere in between but there were some tunic-top two-piece dresses. The Crahay shape is almost milk-bottle and all big-hipped women should be grateful to him. There were no low waistlines at Nina Ricci. When Crahay makes one at all, it was right where nature meant it to be.

Cardin jackets are long with stark necklines, occasional several ties around the hipline. His tunic dresses end in hard, round cylinders that made Crahay's milk-bottle look mild.

NEW LOOK

The new look for Chanel was waist-curving packets falling to mid hip over full pleated skirts. She showed no full length or ankle-length evening gowns as most were full-skirted pastel chiffons or black lace worn over voluminous petticoats. Her familiar braid turned to leather and embroidered trimmings.

Paris showed a trend of no sleeves for most dresses and some coats and short, half or two-third length sleeves were reported to be more numerous than three-quarter or bracelet length. Mountings of sleeves varied—some dropped and wide, some cape-looking. Conventional insets or raglan seam at the back or sleeve top seams were reserved for suits.

The collarless neckline was the neckline in Paris for most suits and coats as well as for nearly all daytime dresses. Jacques Griffe was the exception with big starched collars on most of his creations. Evening gowns were mostly high at front and low at back. Ricci had the lowest neckline in a strapless scoop effect on an evening gown which just skimmed the breast and rose to a point at either side.

WIDEN HEMLINES

Skirts that can be walked in were a joy to note as the princess skirt and pleats both tend to widen hemlines. Many slim skirts for suits were cut in panels which widen toward the bottom. Box and knife pleated skirts were everywhere. Pierre Balmain and Jacques Heim were strong on pleated bands, gathered flounces, tiers and double hemlines. Hemlines, in general, were unchanged from last season, remaining at the top of the calf.

Tonight over WSB-TV at 10

you can see these Parisian creations on Paris a la Mode—if you're lucky enough to have a color television, you can see them in color.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Monday, Feb. 29, 1960 17

Annie Lou Hardy Sweet Briar Alumnae To Honor Mrs. Wood

A Virginia visitor expected on Wednesday is Mrs. Ernest Wood, alumnae secretary at Sweet Briar College.

On the day of her arrival, Mrs. Wood will be honor guest at an alumnae meeting and morning coffee to be given at 11 o'clock at the Valley road home of Mrs. Bates Block. New Alumnae Club officers will be installed at the meeting, the group to include Mrs. Charles Collins, president; Caroline Sauls, vice president; Mrs. Harold McKenzie Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Bates Block, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. John Izard, treasurer.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Alvin Cates Jr. will entertain at tea honoring Mrs. Wood, inviting to meet her the mothers of the Atlanta girls currently enrolled at Sweet Briar, and mothers of prospective students. Mrs. Cates' daughter, Virginia, is a Sweet Briar freshman.

BRIDE-ELECT LYNN BEVERIDGE will be honor guest at the tea and kitchen shower at which Mrs. Frank Rust of Martinez will be hostess on Friday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Garrard of Habersham road.

Mrs. Rust will be one of Lynn's bridesmaids at her marriage on March 26 to Thomas W. Kretz of Ft. Lauderdale.

ON SATURDAY MORNING Gayle Candler invited newly-wed Mrs. Frank Nix Jr., the former Gayonne Dinkler, to come by to look at samples of embroidered linens.

"Come about noon," said Gayle, "and we can have a coke at the same time. The man representing the linen house will be here then."

When Mrs. Nix arrived at Gayle's Pine Hill Place residence, she found to her complete surprise, not the display of linens, but a gathering of her close friends.

Following luncheon, Gayle brought in a large, white, wicker hamper, which has been in her family for many years and which was filled with a variety of gifts as a surprise shower for the honor guest.

Gayle's mother, Mrs. Asa W. Candler, and Gayonne's mother, Mrs. Carling Dinkler Jr., assisted in entertaining. The luncheon table featured as a centerpiece an old-fashioned bridal bouquet.

DR. AND MRS. ERNEST FELBER are rejoicing over news of a new grandson—the second son born on Feb. 19 in Paris, France, to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gratwohl. The baby has been named Francois. Mrs. Gratwohl is the former Maria Felber of Atlanta.

AT THE RECENT CLOSE of rushing season at Randolph-Macon, seven Atlanta freshmen were initiated into campus sororities. Eleanor McPhail became a Chi Omega; Alice Hurt and Margaret Mobley pledged Kappa Delta; Harriet Avary, Miriam Frye, Elizabethine Gaultney and Isabel Patterson were claimed by Phi Mu.

MEMBERS OF THE WOMEN'S COMMITTEE of the Atlanta Symphony Guild have issued invitations for a French Wine Festival on Saturday, March 12.

The party, which is sponsored by the French Commercial Counselor for the Southern states, and is under the auspices of the French consul general for the Southeast and the French consul in Atlanta, will take place at the Driving Club at 5:30 o'clock, with reservations to be made by donations to the Symphony Guild.

CONGRATULATIONS — To Judith Johnson, daughter of the Howard B. Johnsons, for being included among the 32 first-year students at Sweet Briar named to the Freshman Honor List. . . . To Gail Starling, daughter of the Thomas J. Starlings, for being named to membership in the Delphians, honor society for freshman girls at Vanderbilt. . . . To Nancie Englund, daughter of the Walter O. Englund and a freshman at Florida State University, for being chosen activities chairman of Delta Zeta sorority at the university.

CAROL IS THE NAME Mr. and Mrs. Bevan Youse have given to their first-born, a daughter who arrived at Emory Hospital on Feb. 18. Mrs. Youse is the former Carolyn Moorehead of North Webster, Ind. Mr. Youse is a professor of mathematics at Emory University.

'Charm' Could Buy
A Lot of Fertilizer

If it weren't for my friends I'd never know how poor and deprived I am. After all, during one of the recesses at the Winder murder trial I made the second hand stores and came away rejoicing over a little kerosene lamp to replace one that was stolen from the cabin at Holly Creek. (And that was one that I bought at Buford Carr's hardware store in Vienna during the last days of the late Senator Walter George's final illness.)

Besides the little lamp I acquired an old brown pitcher and both acquisitions, coming to a total of little more than a dollar, caused me to walk high and proud the way women do when they've had a particularly happy shopping expedition.

I felt pretty rich in this world's goods. In fact, I felt so good I was almost guilty. Pleasure in mere things, I keep telling my children, is a risky business. Overdone it can lead to a rank and festering materialism. So I tried to temper my pleasure in the little kerosene lamp and the brown earthen ware pitcher.

And while I was girding myself against o'er-weening pride, what does a friend do but send me a snide little note to remind me of my poverty. The note came with a clipping about a bauble a New York jeweler is offering his customers.

This little doo-dad is a charm for your charm bracelet if you have one. I haven't one. It's one of the things I never dreamed of wanting. All that dangle-jangle was for teenagers, I thought. Now I'm not sure. It seems that charm bracelets come high these days. You could invest the price of a house and lot in one if you were so minded. And the little thingamajigs they hang on charm bracelets can cost as much as winter coat or a couple of Franklin stoves.

Take this one. It's about the size of a quarter and the jeweler suggested it as a Valentine present. It is a 14-karat gold spaceman with jeweled eyes and the legend engraved on the little frame around the spaceman is a tender: "You Are Out of This World."

The price: $60. All morning this silly little bauble has haunted me. At first I scorned it. The Valentine message isn't the most original or pulse-stirring thing I ever heard. If a gentleman of my acquaintance were smart enough to dig up $60 to spend on valentines I figure he would surely be smart enough to think of a better sentiment that that. "Out of this world," indeed! I don't want to be out of this world. I like this one. I'm happy to bumble around in it. I don't want to go flapping out into space.

Besides, if somebody is going to send me a $60 present, there are several things I'd rather have. Think how much fertilizer you could buy with that. Or how much sheetrock. You could practically plant a rose garden or build a fence or buy a cow and calf. (I don't need a cow and calf but it sure is a lot more for the money than a 14-karat gold spaceman.)

A man who would say, "You Are Out of This World," instead of "I love you," is kidding you, no matter how much he spent on the spaceman, I figure. And I threw the picture in the trash basket and returned to contemplating my kerosene lamp.

But somehow it isn't quite as rich-making as it was before I saw that datted charm. Come to think about it, I wonder what's wrong with me . . . why did no one ever send me a $60 14-karat chunk of uselessness?

Mortar Board
Elects at Scott

Miss Patricia Walker of Macon has been elected president of the 1960-61 chapter of Mortar Board at Agnes Scott College.

The 1959-60 chapter picked her for the presidency on the basis of her leadership, scholarship and service, which are the ideals of Mortar Board, a senior national honorary organization for women seniors. Miss Walker is a junior history major.

Plans Completed

Lynn Beveridge and her fiance, Thomas W. Kroetz of Ft. Lauderdale, were snapped by the photographer as they left the Mathieson drive home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Beveridge, for a pre-nuptial party in their honor. During the future bridegroom's weekend visit here, the couple completed details for their wedding on March 26 at All Saints Episcopal Church. A reception will follow at the Georgian Terrace Hotel. (Staff Photo—Dwight Ross).

Alumnae Club
Sets Breakfast

The Upsilon and Atlanta Alumnae Chapters of Phi Chi Theta, the oldest national women's fraternity at Georgia State College, will hold their annual Founder's Day breakfast at 9:30 a.m. on Sunday, March 6, at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Dr. E. T. Eggers, professor of management at Georgia State, will be guest speaker.

Active or alumnae members may make reservations for the breakfast with Miss Betty Keith or Miss Estelle Riddle.

Atlanta's Best Hatted

Mrs. Albert E. Thornton takes a peek at some of the hats that have won for her the Golden Hat Award citation as best-hatted woman in her area. Presented by the Millinery Institute of America and The Atlanta Constitution, the citation places Mrs. Thornton with the nation's best-hatted award winner in seven categories: Mrs. Clare Booth Luce, government; Joan Crawford, business and industry; Doris Day, motion pictures; Betsy Palmer, television; Jessica Tandy, stage; Celeste Holm, singer, and Mrs. Eleanor Searle Whitney, international society. A Woman
With Look
All Her Own

NICE (WNS)—"It's easy to pick out the American woman in Europe," said Alice LeDuc.

"She has a look all her own." Mme. LeDuc dresses screen actresses to resemble any nationality their roles call for.

She said the American woman is one with the following items:

1. A little hat that perches flat on top of her head. "It avoids her face instead of flattering it."

2. Two rows of pearls choking her neck in a neat, clean-looking but unflattering line.

3. An immovable bosom. "It looks like steel construction work."

4. White, cotton, wrist-length gloves such as children wear. The cotton gloves are orn with furs and even worn for evening!

5. A flattened derrier like a wood plank.

6. A fur stole worn with a suit. "Affreux!"

"But the American woman is the one in shoes that fit," sighed Mrs. LeDuc, enviously.

New Arrival

Mr. and Mrs. C. Nathan Mills announce the birth of a daughter, Shelborne Jane, on Feb. 2 at Piedmont Hospital. Mrs. Mills is the former Sally McNeely.

"YOUNG SIXTH" FLOOR

on this leap year, February 29th here is Muse's proposal . . .

Muse's is proposing to all the unmarried men of Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb and all the other 156 counties in Georgia. Our proposal is simply this: get married. It doesn't matter whether you ask her or she asks you . . . just get spliced, hitched, wedded, melded, mated.

Married, you'll live longer, look younger, have fewer (if any) ulcers.

We'd like to marry off as much of unmarried Georgia and the Southeast as possible . . . and then take good care of them. Now we realize that having a good store to your back is not quite all you need to assure married bliss.

But, Lads, forsake your furnished rooms, your walk-ups, your one-room bachelor apartments. Gals, forsake yours. Team up.

Marriages are made in heaven . . . but all of us here at The Style

Atlantans Pledge Emory Sororities

At the end of the winter rush season at Emory, bids were sent to 47 coeds by the campus sororities.

Model Reports A Difference

PARIS (WNS) — Francoise Dorleac, 17, has been the youngest model at the House of Dior and is now making her film debut in "Wolves in the Sheepfold." "To be a successful model, every hair must be in perfect order," she said. "To be a movie star in these days of realism, every hair must be in perfect disorder."

Atlantans accepting Alpha Chi Omega bids were Patsy T. Estes and Judith L. Robinson, and Chi Omega pledges included Laura E. Hunter, Elizabeth C. Hudson and June Witt of Decatur.

Delta Delta Delta pledged Mary Melinda Stoner of Decatur and Delta Gamma claimed Phyllis Marian Yancey, Margaret Virginia Key and Eleanor Frances Chandler.

New members of the Kappa Kappa Gamma roster are Barbara Ann Cole, Andrea W. Beall, Dora Ann Perkerson and Jimmie Kaye Jones. Sandra Lee Byrd was pledged to Phi Mu.

The World Over, Shrove Tuesday Is Traditional Day for Pancakes

By PATRICIA DEATON
Constitution Food Editor

Shrove Tuesday is an age-old tradition in which the women originally used their leftovers for pancakes in a race to beat the tolling bell that signified the beginning of their fast. With Shrove Tuesday coming up tomorrow, women the world over are busy with new recipes for pancakes in keeping with tradition.

Women in Liberal, Kan., and Olney, England, are preparing for their annual race over identical S-shaped courses in each country. Each contestant attempts to flip a pancake three times in a skillet without breaking stride over the 425-yard course. Scores of contestants are compared, and the fastest participant wins the trans-oceanic championship for her team.

Atlanta women aren't racing, but they are busily preparing pancakes for the festive day which marks both the day of feasting at Mardi Gras and the day before Lent.

Mrs. George Rue De Nauer of Mt. Gilead road is an excellent example. She enjoys experimenting with breads and especially likes to prepare what she calls flapjacks.

Originally of Rochester, N.Y., this lady has traveled all over the world with her husband. Needless to say, she has sampled many unusual foods. "Pancakes are not pancakes in Europe," she says. "They are much heavier than what we prepare in America—and not as good."

While preparing some Sour Cream Pancakes that would melt in your mouth, she called attention to her collection of old cookbooks. Included were the old Household Searchlight and two editions of the White House Cook Book.

Mrs. Rue de Nauer never uses mixes. In her words, "I have no luck with them."

When preparing this pancake recipe, the pancakes are better of the batter is lumpy and if they need to be thinned, "Add more milk or cream until of the right consistency."

SOUR CREAM PANCAKES
2 cups plain flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1 egg
2 cups sour milk or cream
Mix altogether on an electric mixer. Grease skillet lightly and fry.

Top these wonderful pancakes with this wonderful quick Newburg Sauce.

NEWBURG SAUCE
1/2 cup milk
1 can undiluted condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 cup cooked or canned lobster
2 tbsps. diced pimiento
Toasted almonds
Gradually stir milk into soup in saucepan. Add lobster and pimiento. Heat to serving temperature. To serve, spoon sauce over pancakes; garnish with toasted almonds.

Tortes in Italy are served with a cream custard that contains raisins and nuts. "It's not quite like American pancakes but delicious."

If pancakes are made to perfection, they will be a light, airy, hot and delicious. With so many intriguing ways to prepare pancakes you can easily find one method that will strike your fancy.

Pancakes can be filled either with leftovers or plain foods. They can be lavishly dressed like the Russian-blini with sour cream and caviar or given the French crepe treatment with rum or cognac; filled like Hungarian palacsinta with lobster or served with lagoonberries like the plattar.

If these don't do the trick, then you can always flatter a pancake by making Chocolate, Buttermilk, Blueberry, Hawaiian Strawberry, Potato, Spicy Apple, the famous Buckwheat or the plain old standard delicious pancake with butter and syrup lavishly poured over.

Just in case you need some helpful hints in preparing these pancakes be sure to turn pancakes before the air bubbles break. Don't lift a edge to peek under and check browning. Never turn pancakes after they have been cooked on both sides.

To prevent the problem of preparing pancakes while the rest of the family is busy downing those delicious delicacies, cook as many as you need, wrap in a warm towel and store in a warm oven.

German Prince Makes Gourmet Social News

By YOLANDE GWIN

Princes are making the news these days. First there was the one born to Queen Elizabeth, and then the first born son of the Crown Princess Michiko of Japan and hailed as the future (and 126th) emperor to sit on the chrysanthemum throne.

Queen Elizabeth's son, her second, is second in line to the British throne.

Anyway, a more mature royal figure, Prince Hubertus zu Lowenstein of Germany was in town a few days ago.

"Ah, your Southern fried chicken, it is superb and I love it," he said as he munched on a chicken leg at a cocktail party given by his hosts, German Consul Dr. Karl Schoenbach and Mrs. Schoenbach.

SOUTHERN TIDBIT

Mrs. Schoenbach, in planning her cocktail menu, decided that since the prince was a Deep South visitor, she would combine a real Southern tidbit with a German dish in addition to the usual cocktail fare.

"We enjoy chicken so much in my native country of Hungary, but Southern fried is a different story. I thought it would be a little nice for him and I think he really liked it," she said.

The prince, along with the other guests, nibbled on chicken legs and also tried some of the German potato salad spread on thin slices of rye bread.

"I'll forego the salad," said the prince, "and concentrate on the chicken and the fine highly seasoned tomato juice. The combination is wonderful."

Mrs. Schoenbach, at the request of many of her guests, passed on her recipe for the salad which she said, "I always serve because so many of the men guests prefer something a bit heavier and more filling than the usual dishes."

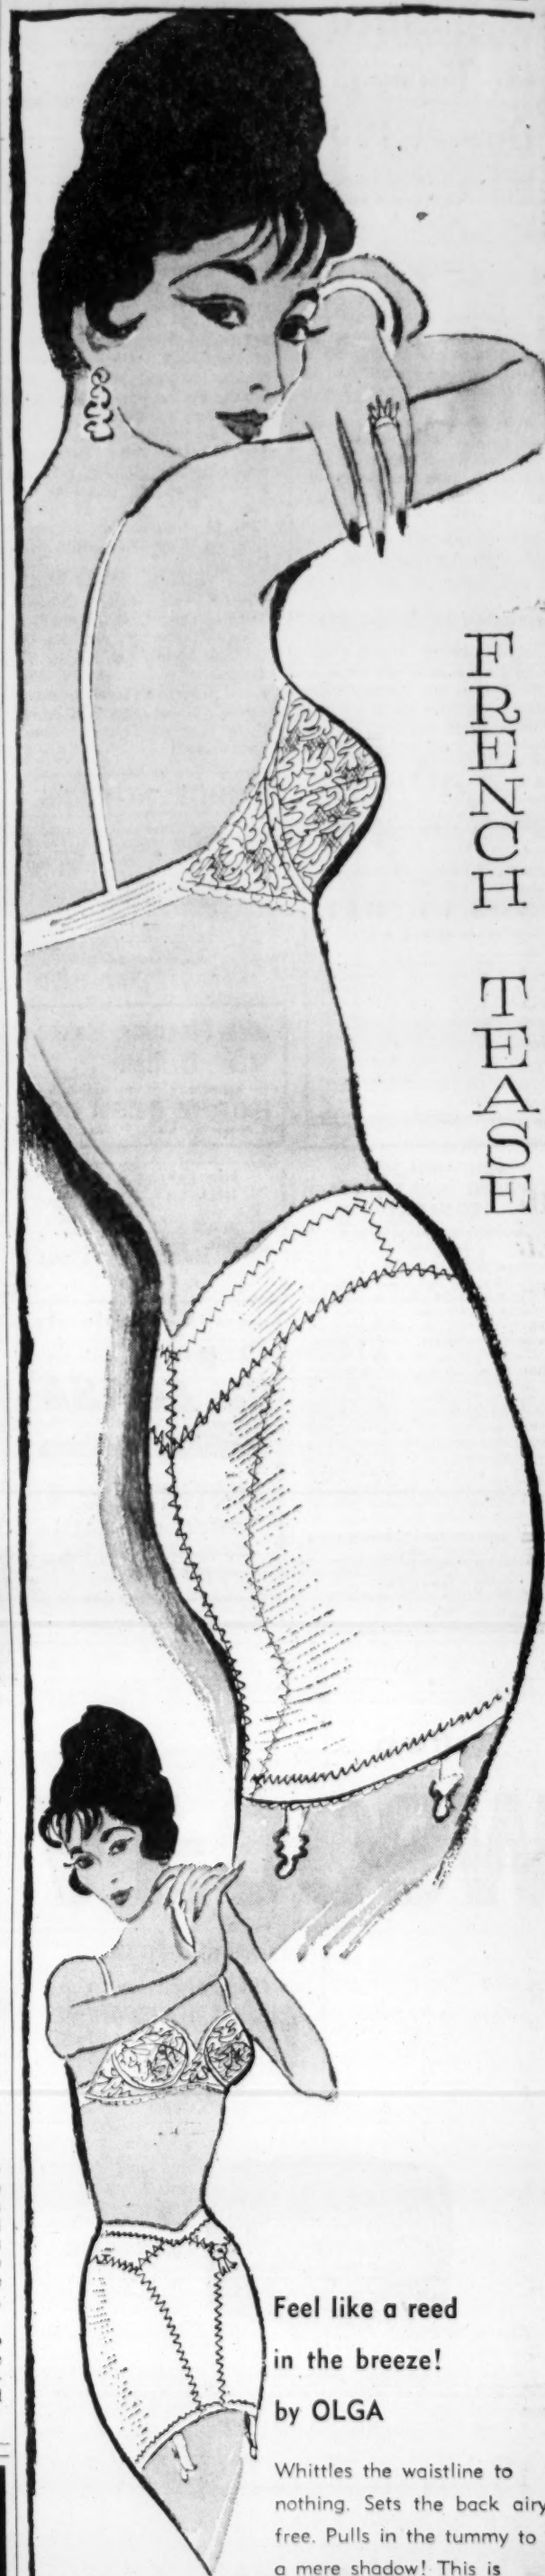

Here it is, according to Mrs. Schoenbach:

SMALL SQUARES

"I always used the Idaho baking potatoes and cook them the day before I make the salad. Then when I cut them in small squares they are firm and cold and don't come out so mushy like, I use sour pickles, sliced boiled eggs, vinegar, a salad oil and just a little mayonnaise."

And it might be added here that a quick checkup after the party revealed that there was no "leftover" salad nor fried chicken legs. But there was some of everything else like ham, chicken livers, cheese dips, almonds, coffee and cake, and a variety of liquors.

As the prince slipped away to board a plane for Miami, he thanked his hosts for "a charming and delightful party and wonderful legs!"

GOREN on Bridge

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
AK92 ♥ 7 ♦ AS J98653

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—While partner has shown a mere preference for clubs, nevertheless, he may, without having an impressive holding, produce just enough material for you to go to game. The silence of the opponents at this low level makes it highly probable that partner's hand contains some high card strength. It behooves you, therefore, to take one more step, and the suggested call is three clubs.

Q. 2—Both sides vulnerable, you are South and hold:
AKJ74 ♥ 632 ♦ 1053 ♠ K94

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 NT Double Pass 2 ♣

Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—It is clearly established that West, poor fellow, is in dire straits. By simple arithmetic we can conclude that he hasn't a high card in his hand. North has at least 16, East presumably 16, and you have seven. That West can win eight tricks is inconceivable and a penalty double is in order.

Q. 3—Both sides vulnerable, and as South you hold:
AK1095 ♦ AQ1063 ♠ 874

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ 1 ♠ Double Pass

What action do you take?
A.—With unbalanced hands, containing a void of the adverse suit, it is against our policy to stand for penalty doubles of low contracts and our recommended call is two diamonds. We do not subscribe to the theory that "the less trumps I have the more partner has." The more pointed view is, "the less trumps I have the more dummy will have."

Q. 4—As South you hold:
AK46 ♦ AKJ7 ♠ AKJ8432

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—It is reasonable to assume that the diamonds are solid and that the question of the trick taking possibilities of this hand depends only on the number of aces held by partner. A Blackwood bid of four no trump is, therefore, clearly indicated.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
AK63 ♦ AJ9 ♠ AKQJ9854

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—The suggested call is three clubs. It is true that such a call is not forcing, but we are willing to assume the risk that the bidding will die. We consider such an occurrence extremely remote and would like to have the bidding develop naturally in order to best determine the full possibilities of the hand.

Q. 6—You are South with a 90 part score. Your partner opens with one heart and you hold:
AKJ1075 ♥ 1098 ♦ 43 ♠ J82

What do you bid?
A.—Though the one heart puts you out, it is doubtful that the opposition will let the hand go by default. You may expect competition. It is our suggestion, therefore, that while it is cheap you get in a bid and the suggested call is one spade. The fact that you bid with 90 on score does not necessarily suggest that you are ambitious.

A BUSINESS OF YOUR OWN

With Unusual Repeat Features . . .

We have a highly respected essential business that should provide you with unusually high income the first year. A business that can earn a semi-retirement income in renewals alone in 2 to 3 years. Not seasonal, not dependent on economic conditions. Endorsed by banks, trade associations, thousands of users. No overhead, warehousing, credit or labor costs. A trouble-free business that yields exceptional income year after year. Established over 25 years. We give you the benefit of a thorough field training as well as training at our home office (expenses paid by us) and keep a continuing supervisory interest in your operation.

If you have a spark of salesmanship and/or executive ability, an investment of $9,500 to $12,500 (usually recouped in 6 to 8 months) will place you in a position to own outright a prime highly desirable franchise in a choice area. PLEASE CONSIDER THIS CAREFULLY BEFORE APPLYING. This is no gimmick or gadget operation, but a dignified business, highly endorsed, with over 300 successful distributors nationally (names on request). We want only dedicated individuals who can and are willing to devote full time to the success of their franchise.

Choice territories available in various sections of Atlanta and surrounding areas with active repeat accounts.

Trials of a Bullfighter

Looking a bull in the eye is a scary business, according to Lucille Ball, who actually faces a real one in "Lucy Goes to Mexico," a Desilu Playhouse rerun Friday (Ch. 5, 9 p.m.). Guest star with Lucy and Desi is Maurice Chevalier. The show is being repeated "by popular request."

SCOUTING TV MONDAY

Pair of Groaners In Hour of Music

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BETS—It's Leap Year Day, and the networks are planning a little something extra, too, with two intriguing specials.

First is The Bing Crosby Show, with Perry Como as chief guest, and these are two of the least-likely-to-leap characters in show business.

This is the first part of a reciprocal deal, with Crosby returning the visit next month.

First is a "lazy medley," with Bing and Perry hanging on straps while they sing songs in praise of indolence. Then there's a Chevalier medley, including "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," a son Bing didn't want to do because of its private meaning in his family, but he finally agreed.

Also present are three of Bing's sons (all except Gary), Elaine Dunn, an energetic dancer, and young singer Sandy Stewart.

Most of this is lighthearted and informal, but Miss Dunn's number is a cleverly staged affair with her and her dancing companions going through a remarkable transformation. 8:30-9:30 (Ch. 11).

Elaine Dunn Darren McGavin

And then you'll see Paris a la Mode, an effort to build a show around fashions. They've divided the show into three parts, each devoted to one of the three "dominant influences" on women's fashions, with a few songs by host Jacques Bergerac and Janine and Nico, a Parisian couple who play the recorder and guitar and sing.

After each act, there will be a display of fashions with Julia

Perry Como Dan Duryea

Meade as commentator. Each gown will be shown individually, much as though it were a high fashion photograph.

Approximately 45 per cent of the program's time will be devoted to this display of Parisian creations, modelled by imported-from-Paris mannequins.

There is another bit, a surprise number featuring three stars doing a number, which will be dropped in between the second and third acts. This program is trying something different, and even the producers aren't sure how it will work. 10-11 (Ch. 2).

7:30-8:30 (Ch. 2) — Darren McGavin's fans know the reason he missed making two Riverboat episodes was because he first got Asian flu, then was in an auto accident.

But, if you just watch tonight's show, all you'll be told is that Capt. Holden, the part McGavin plays, had to go down river on business. So Capt. Turner takes over.

He's played by Dan Duryea, and he'll skipper the Enterprise for two weeks and two adventures. Tonight's involves a renegade white man who makes believe it is Indians who do his killing.

Note the man playing the Mexican, Rico. He's Victor Millan, a drama teacher from Santa Monica College who makes extra money as a character actor.

As I See It What TV Needs Is A Slight Roasting

By PAUL JONES

When you get right down to it, none of us like criticism—not even the television comics who have a ball roasting everybody and everything.

But it seems that TV is staffed by the most sensitive group of people anywhere. The clowns who are supposed to make people laugh often find that life has some grim aspects too. Often the comics are more allergic to criticism than entertainers engaged in other phases of the amusement business.

For this reason it is refreshing to see someone in TV take a poke at someone in television. In this respect, I might point out that the good-natured jabs some comics took at the quiz racket would have been funnier had the network newscasters done a better job of covering this chicanery from a serious standpoint.

Jones
9:30 p.m.,

What I am getting around to is that Red Skelton and Art Carney, two guys who have proved that they can roll with a punch, are going to take good-natured jabs at such things as censorship, the American fetish of award-giving, Person to Person, and some other things.

Skelton, in fact, will step in where networks fear to tread. He will allow Mae West to say some things that she wasn't permitted to say on a censored version of Person to Person. This takes place Tuesday night (Channel 5 at

It might interest you to know that the CBS Continuity Acceptance Department (that's a nice word for censor) had its eye on Red and Mae during the taping of the show but finally gave a reluctant okay.

The script will lampoon Person to Person, even to a satire on Edward R. Murrow, with the inevitable cigaret bit figuring in a stinging bit.

ART CARNEY, who I suppose has developed an immunity to the barbs of critics in his long tenure in the theater, will put several hot cakes on the griddle Friday night (Channel 2 at 8:30 p.m.).

In a satirical revue, written by Larry Gelbart, Art will take a swat at our penchant for giving awards. Props for this skit will include plaques, cups, scrolls and certificates.

The awards presented by publications, disc jockeys, TV and movie organizations and other groups will be the subjects of a mild roasting.

Topping off his evening of satire, Carney will take a swat at the Congressional committee organized purely for publicity purposes; a beauty and talent contest in which the participants attempt to prove their versatility; a current hit movie about an erring wife, her playful lover and her obtuse husband; the latest in the crop of rock 'n' roll singers—this one called "The Fabulous Flavius"—and a TV program dedicated to classical music, as explained by a decidedly flamboyant symphonic conductor.

I'M ESPECIALLY happy that Carney is going to rib the Congressional committees, for, it seems, the congressmen heading up some of the committees on crime, quiz fixes and payola have been getting more publicity than some of the crooks.

And that's just not fair.

SIMONE SIGNORET, LAURENCE HARVEY IN "ROOM AT THE TOP"
British Film Has Been Banned in Atlanta

AT THE MOVIES

What Will the Censor Do If 'Room' Nabs an Oscar?

By BILL POPE

We've been trying to get all excited about the Oscar nominations, but it's no use; we just don't care. If the Academy Award people are really going to take "Ben-Hur" as seriously as all that, what's the use?

Looking back over past Oscar winner lists is an interesting pastime but a rather pathetic one—some of the acting award-ees are physically dead, some are now dead at the box office and some are, well, never mind what they are.

However, the recent Oscar nominations have revived an interesting local question—that old bugaboo, film censorship.

Atlanta's censor, Mrs. Christine Gilliam, has seen fit to ban "Room at the Top," a British import. "Room" has been nominated in the Oscar categories of best picture, best actor (Laurence Harvey), and actress (Simone Signoret), directing and screenplay.

The public at large doesn't give a hoot about directing and screenplay, but if "Room" should cop one of the other category prizes, Atlanta audiences might well ask why they are not permitted to see such a noteworthy film.

Contrary to what you may have heard, Mrs. Gilliam does not sport a pair of horns, nor does she tote a pitchfork. If Atlanta has to have a censor at all, then somehow we are glad it's Mrs. Gilliam.

FRANK TALK

We would take issue with her on matters of consistency. Her main reason for banning "Room at the Top" was its "earthy" dialogue. But what about the frankly clinical sex talk of "Anatomy of a Murder," for example?

Oh, well, the Atlanta censor has faced more ardent inquirers than us before and come through it unscathed.

Nevertheless, it will be interesting to see what the reaction is in Atlanta if "Room at the Top" is named as best picture or if Mr. Harvey or Mme. Signoret are awarded statuettes.

We saw "Room at the Top" last December, by the way, and it's a good 'un. About the "salty" dialogue, it must have sailed right past us even though we were all ears.

IT'S TIME to talk about the end of the world through atomic fallout.

That's the theme of "On the Beach," the Stanley Kramer picture due to open Thursday at the Rialto. It's an adaptation of the Nevil Shute novel, which is a pretty grim book.

The movie version has its depressing moments, too, but it's got some dull spots and takes a spell to get moving. The best scenes occur when Gregory Peck and his submarine crew take a trip to San Francisco to try to find a survivor of the atomic holocaust.

Another chilling moment occurs at the end, when the surviving populace in Australia lines up at government stations to obtain suicide pills which make death by radiation a more painless one.

WHO'S TO BLAME?

In between, various characters sit around drinking liquor to escape reality and trying to place the blame for World War III, as if it really mattered.

Ava Gardner plays a jaded beauty who falls in love with Peck, whose family was wiped out in America. Anthony Perkins plays a young Naval officer who has a hard time making his wife (Donna Anderson) face up to the realities of impending death.

None of these people is very convincing, but Fred Astaire is believable as an atomic scientist who entertains a crushing sense of guilt.

That's Mr. Astaire on the front cover, with the highball, and the others depicted are, left to right, Gardner, Peck, Anderson and Perkins.

Network Plans Drama Reruns

(C) 1960 New York Times News Service
NEW YORK — Drama shows starring Ingrid Bergman and Sir Alec Guinness, first televised last fall, will be among several to be repeated by the Startime series this season.

Hubbell Robinson, executive producer of Startime, denied there was anything unusual about the plan to do repeats. He said he had always planned to do so and that "no more than three or four" programs would be repeated.

Miss Bergman starred in "Turn of the Screw" on Startime on Oct. 20. Guinness appeared Nov. 10 in a play titled "The Wicked Scheme of Jebal Deeks."

Interracial Movie Banned in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The Memphis Censor Board has banned as obscene the movie "Island in the Sun," which stars Negro actor Harry Belafonte and Joan Fontaine in a story of interracial love.

This is the second time the film has been banned here. In 1957, a previous board called it: "Inflammatory, too frank a depiction of miscegenation, offensive to moral standards and no good for either white or Negro." Miscegenation refers to race mixing.

Board members said they were willing to back up the ban in court.

They also indicated another movie, "Rebel Breed," may be banned. Mrs. Judson McKellar, board chairman, called it a "perfectly dreadful and frightful" film. Another member said he objected to the way it portrayed young white and Negro gangs.

Mrs. McKellar said the board used the word "obscene" on ad-

Rebs Who Wouldn't Quit Are Subjects of TV Story

A little-remembered fact surrounding the end of the Civil War has been used as the basis for the story of "The Last Reb," dramatic presentation on Startime Tuesday (Ch. 2, 8:30 p.m.).

"The Last Reb" is a story about the Civil War that takes place eight days after what is commonly accepted as the end of the conflict.

The Civil War did not come abruptly and completely to a close when Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox Court-house on April 9, 1865. There were other Confederate fighting forces in various parts of the South which had not surrendered and would not surrender for weeks to come.

NO YIELDING

For instance, the South's Gen. Johnston did not yield up his considerable number of troops to Sherman until April 26, 12 days after Lincoln's assassination.

Confederate forces in Alabama and Mississippi were surrendered on May 4 and it was not until May 26, 47 days after Appomattox, that the Confederacy's Trans-Mississippi forces laid down their arms.

It took nearly two months for all hostilities to cease, due to lack of communications and the refusal of some Southern troops to believe their cause was lost.

"The Last Reb" is about a

ROBERT HORTON, ANNE FRANCIS IN WAR TALE

squad of the latter — soldiers who won't give up. It takes place on April 17, 1865, eight days after Appomattox's stillness and concerns a few rebels under the command of Capt. Jeff McLeod.

The story concerns their clash with a small Union detachment in and around a Missouri farm. Robert Horton plays the title role, that of a Confederate captain who leads a small detachment of troops which has not heard about the end of the war.

In a skirmish with Union troops led by Marshall Thompson, Horton is wounded. He is given refuge in a Missouri farm home occupied by three women and a teen-age boy who wants to get into the fighting.

Anne Francis portrays one of these women and she helps the wounded Confederate captain, despite her sister's objections. Ricardo Montalban will portray the leader of the Union force.

Indestructible Mae

The latest man in Mae West's life is Cauliflower McPugg (Red Skelton), and the air will be heavy with romance, presumably, when she visits the Skelton show Tuesday (Ch. 5, 9:30 p.m.).

Presley's Style Due For Change

HOLLYWOOD (UPI). Country singer Johnny Cash, former sidekick of Elvis Presley, says the wiggly singer probably will change his style when he's released from the Army next month.

"The rock and roll type singing he did before going into the service isn't popular anymore," says Cash. "He'll just have to adjust to the new style. Elvis had a rock and roll guitar sound in his act, but now singers use more saxophones, violins and rhythm sections to put a tune across."

"Actually, I think he'll do better when he comes back," he claimed. "He shouldn't have any trouble. He's made some recordings with big orchestras before."

"Also, I don't believe he'll do country tunes when he gets out. He'll probably sing Frank Sinatra-type melodies."

Cash, a 28-year-old ex-farm boy who wore shoes only in the winter time during his kid days, once worked three months with Elvis.

Besides changing his style, Johnny said Presley might concentrate heavier on acting when he's turned loose on the world by Uncle Sam.

JACKIE COOPER

and lovely Abby Dalton get embroiled in a serious violation of military protocol when "Hennessey" and his nurse skip the Admiral's Party, tonight at 10:00 on WAGA-TV.

JUNE ALLYSON

brings Vic Damone and Keenan Wynn to the screen in "Plane Man," tonight on the DuPont-June Allyson Show. A barroom piano player and a gambler form an alliance tonight at 10:30.

LOOK FOR THE SILVER LINING

The film story of Marilyn Miller is featured in tonight's top attraction on "Big Movie," June Haver, Ray Bolger, Gordon McRae and a top cast star in one of Hollywood's best at 11:20 p.m.

The camera watches as man and wife meet, perhaps for the last time, in the stark, cold atmosphere of "Divorce Court." Actual courtroom procedure adds to the realism of this engaging episode. Tonight at 7:00.

'Treasure Island' on Television

Robert Louis Stevenson's classic adventure story, "Treasure Island," will get the works on television as the Show of the Month Saturday (Ch. 5, 7:30-9 p.m.). Richard O'Sullivan, left, plays young Jim Hawkins; Hugh Griffith is Long John Silver, and Boris Karloff is the menacing Billy Bones.

WOULD-BE 'QUEEN'

'Messy Bessy' Stalks Out; Emcee Says Good Riddance

By JOE FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI). Jack Bailey has busted up with old flame "Messy Bessie," a gal who's been trying desperately for years to crash his Queen for a Day show.

"Yes, I'm afraid old Bess and I are through," said Jack, without the slightest trace of sadness.

Bessie is one of the "old pros" of audience-participation shows who haunt Jack's NBC-TV program hoping to be selected "Queen" and walk off with a jackpot full of prizes.

SHOW VETERAN

"Bessie had been coming to my show for 10 years," Jack said. "She wore old, ragged clothes and always carried a crutch, but walks as good as you and I."

"Whenever she came to the theater - restaurant where we hold the show, Bessie would hobble up the center aisle and take a front table."

"Then, all during the warm-up period before the show, Bessie would cackle and disturb other spectators," he added. "So, the last time she appeared, I had ushers move her to the back - she got mad and left."

"Hasn't been back either," said Jack with a wispy smile indicating he'd met with good fortune.

Jack said he can usually spot one of the regulars that attend all Hollywood shows in search of loot.

JACK BAILEY

THEY WALK OUT

"They make a study of each show," he said. "For instance, on our program we hand cards to all ladies in the audience and they fill them out, giving reasons why they want to be Queen."

"The pros are good at it," he claimed. "But, if they don't get chosen among the preliminary group of contestants, they walk out before the show begins. They never come to see the show, they're only interested in winning prizes."

STUNG ONCE

Just once in the 15 years the program has been on TV and radio has Jack been stung by one of his Queen bees.

"Only one gal I know of ever got away with being Queen twice," Jack confessed. "She waited about three or four years and then changed her name before trying again."

"One of her neighbors gave the lady away by calling us up after the program was over. We informed the winner that she wouldn't get her wish or the queen's wardrobe."

The lady didn't get the free Brown Derby lunch accorded winners either. There should be a lesson in that somewhere.

Sayings That Probably Never Got Said

From an ABC-TV press release:

The 1930-vintage cars, radios, telephones used in the TV Prohibition-era series, The Untouchables, invariably spark reminiscing by the actors, but recently the music of the period really sent them off on a nostalgia "kick."

The script called for 1930 speakeasy music.

Robert Stack, who stars as Eliot Ness, leader of a dedicated group of federal policemen, declared his choice as "I Can't Give You Anything But Love."

"No," said another actor, "they wouldn't be playing that in 1930. I think it was past its peak by the time this scene takes place."

"My favorite," offered Abel Fernandez, who plays Young-fellow, "is 'Good Night, Sweetheart.'"

"No, no, anything but that," begged an older actor. "That was 'our song' to my first wife and me. I think of it every time I sign her alimony check and it drives me nuts."

At this point Quinn Martin, the executive producer, came on the set and announced the song would be "Little White Lies."

"It has just the beat we want," he explained. "The shots can be fired at the start of the third bar—da da de de da da."

Drama Recreates Raid on Beatniks

Last November a group of resourceful New York City detectives posed as Greenwich Village beatniks, complete to beards and berets, and through this ingenious ruse netted 109 dope addicts, peddlers and pushers in what has been termed "the most original police raid of the year."

The story of the hop cops and how they beat the beatniks will be told in Circle Theater's "Raid in Beatnik Village," Wednesday (Ch. 5, 10 p.m.).

Written by Abram S. Ginn and narrated by Douglas Edwards, "Raid in Beatnik Village" goes into the headquarters of New York City's fascinating narcotics squad, revealing the off-beat tactics employed by detectives to snare wily drug peddlers.

Doug Edwards of New York City's fascinating narcotics squad, revealing the off-beat

ESPRESSO AND DOPE

A squad of detectives learned that there is more than meets the eye in various smoky espresso joints in Greenwich Village.

Moving stealthily into the dark hangouts of the beatniks, the hop cops wormed their way into the confidence of the addicts, carefully noting their suppliers and peddlers.

Then spinning an escapeproof web, and spouting "wayout" poetry, they scheduled a "tea" party which wound up in the pokey.

The undercover work began in October, 1959, when a small group of detectives attached to Inspector Edward F. Carey's narcotics squad was ordered to "go beatnik."

Some of the detectives grew goatees; others purchased berets; all learned the lingo of the beatniks, and then they set out for Greenwich Village where they soon were accepted as members of the Beat Generation.

They took part in interpretive dancing sessions, listened to music in Greenwich Village's Washington Square Park, and got involved in what police officials later described as "vague intellectual discussions" with real beatniks.

'JUNKIE'S WOE'

In fact, it wasn't long before one of the detective-beatniks found himself enjoying a vogue as a poet.

Police officials have never released the detective's "major poem" — it was deemed unprintable — but they did release a minor work, called "Junkie's Woe," that reportedly went over big with the beatnik crowd when read in one of the Greenwich Village coffee shops.

Then, one month after they started posing as beatniks, the detectives participated in a city-wide roundup of dope pushers and users in which narcotics valued at one million dollars were confiscated.

After the raid, Inspector Carey told newsmen that, in the future, his men would become "longshoremen, blind musicians, or whatever the situation called for."

SANTA SUITS

On Nov. 22, detectives who has posed as beatniks raided after-hours drinking spots in New York, and early in December, members of Carey's Crusaders arrested seven suspects after posing as Santa Claus.

The detectives had donned Santa Claus suits and walked through the streets singing Christmas songs, ringing bells and handing candy to children.

It was all very jolly, except for the dope pushers who were being kept under surveillance by the detectives.

One question the show will not answer, however, is what Carey's Crusaders are up to now.

Hemingway Drama

Ann Todd has signed to co-star with Robert Ryan in "The Snows of Kilimanjaro," Ernest Hemingway's story of a writer who recalls his adventurous and romantic past as he lies ill in the shadow of Africa's tallest mountain. John Frankenheimer will direct the drama, March 25, on CBS-TV.

Let 'Em Learn Early---Dorothy Shay

By BETTY CARROLLTON

When today's young performers "jump from nothing to a hit record, then into TV," they may be ruining themselves professionally.

"That's no training ground for a real career in show business," says Dorothy Shay, the mountain music siren, currently appearing at the Paradise Room.

So she's doing something about it.

OAK THEATER

The sharp sophisticate of the supper club circuit, and Jo Ann Miller (The "Cousin Agnes Clung" of Shay "Kinfolks") own and operate the Duke's Oak Theater in Cooperstown, N.Y.

The theater was founded 22 years ago by Prof. Randolph Summerville, dean emeritus of drama at New York University, as a summer adjunct to the famous Washington Square Players. Dorothy and Jo Ann have now broadened the theater's scope to train students from all over the country for careers in the professional theater.

"We work toward developing professionally competent actors, technicians and directors," Dorothy said, "giving them theory AND practice. We stress the practical side of theater, as opposed to the theoretical. Our students learn by doing in the atmosphere of a professional theater."

A pet project of Dorothy and her partner is the Duke's Oak Summer Theater Workshop, an "apprentice season" beginning June 21 and continuing through Aug. 30.

The 10 weeks include training in the mechanics of acting, pantomime, and improvisation, with "emphasis at all times on rehearsals and appearances in plays."

DIRECTING PRINCIPLES

"The students are trained in the development of their speaking voice, tone production, distinct articulation and study of dialects for the stage," Dorothy said. "They receive the principles and techniques of directing with actual assignments in the Duke's Oak Theater as assistant director."

"We give them a working knowledge of stagecraft," she continued, "including sound, lighting, set design, set construction, painting, stage decor, costume design and property construction with emphasis on actual execution of scenery, costumes and props."

Classes include make-up techniques, the study of characterization and facial planes, fencing, dancing, and development of voice for popular singing and musical comedy productions.

"We want to attract young people who are sincerely interested in the theater as a career," Dorothy pointed out. "And attending the workshop is a good way for them to decide whether or not they really want a career in this field, in addition to giving them a chance to find out their potential talents."

'Career' Next For Play Group

James Lee's play, "Career," dealing with the life of a Broadway actor, will be the next offering of Theatre Atlanta, opening at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Community Playhouse and running through March 12.

The cast will include Jennings Hertz Jr., Dorothy McConkey, Mimi Honce, Dorothy Pitts and Lila Kennedy.

Following its closing date March 12, the play and cast will go to Chattanooga, Tenn., as a guest production of the Southeastern Theater Conference.

CONCERT IN RHYTHM, Volume II: Ray Conniff, his orchestra and chorus. Columbia (Stereo).

Columbia has another best seller on its hands in this second Conniff concert. Conniff's strongly rhythmic style, his firm beat bring alive a dozen popular melodies from the classics, such tunes as Warsaw Concerto, Madame Butterfly's "One Fine Day," Liszt's "Liebestraum," and, of course, some romantic Tchaikovsky. It's ideal mood music and most of it is danceable, too.—GRG.

TSCHAIKOVSKY: Symphony No. 5 in E Minor. Philadelphia Orchestra conducted by Eugene Ormandy. Columbia.

With 16 recordings of this symphony in the catalogs, you'd think the record makers would be ready to quit. But this performance does have a lot to say that's new: with ultramodern engineering, Ormandy's silken strings and golden horns have produced a real showpiece of a recording, with an especially lovely sound in the popular second movement.—GRG.

BEETHOVEN: Violin Concerto in D Major. Isaac Stern, violin, with New York Philharmonic—Symphony Orchestra conducted by Leonard Bernstein, Columbia.

The most dramatic and exciting of all violin concertos is given a brave and stirring performance by Isaac Stern, whose sure bow never falters in all the intricacies of this work. Bernstein shows again what a powerful instrument he has made of the New York Philharmonic.—GRG.

SING WHILE DANCING THE-CHA-CHA. Chorus and Orchestra Directed by Norman Leyden. (RCA-Camden.)

The sing-along trend strikes an interesting note in this collection, which will attract many non-cha fans. The cha beat adds a delightful twist, and somehow manages to subordinate itself in the words and rhythms of some of the finest romantic songs of the past three decades and more. It's remarkable to see how the cha can be captured by such standbys as "Isle of Capri," "Moon Over Miami" and "Sweet Sue." A good recording of a great selection of favorite romantic tunes.—W.O.M.

FROM ST. LOUIS TO SEVILLE. Carlos Montoya on Guitar (with Rhythm Accompaniment), (RCA-Victor.)

In this recording the producers seek to bridge 3,000 miles and bring together other distant kinfolks to prove the "striking similarities" of American jazz and the Spanish flamenco. To an American "blues" fan, Montoya's rendition of "St. Louis Blues" might be a disappointment. His style adapts better to "Blues in the Night," but even there it's a little too unusual. If you're a Montoya-Seville enthusiast, it's great.—W.O.M.

'TROVATORE' HEROINE
Antonietta Stella

Antonietta Stella Set for 'Trovatore'

Atlanta opera fans will get a chance next Saturday, via radio, to preview what's in store during the Metropolitan Opera season here next May.

The Met's Saturday matinee radio broadcast (WGKA, noon) will be Verdi's "Il Trovatore." Soprano Antonietta Stella, as Leonora, and tenor Carlo Bergonzi, as Manrico, will sing the same roles in the opera here, scheduled for May 6.

Other principals in the broadcast will be Giulietta Simionato, as the gypsy Azucena, and Ettore Bastianini, as Count Di Luna.

Jean Madeira and Robert Merrill are scheduled for the two roles during the Atlanta performance. Saturday's conductor will be Fausto Cleva.

Seven performances remain to be broadcast during the current season, ending April 23.

Walter Chiari Is Three-Time Loser

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

North American Newspaper Alliance

Walter Chiari

Linda Christian

Judy Garland

HOLLYWOOD—The late Tyrone Power's second wife, Linda Christian, is still getting $1,500 a month for the support of their two daughters who live most of the time in Mexico.

Annabella, the actor's first wife, has accepted $40,000 as payment in full, and the executors of Ty's estate would like to make a similar settlement with Linda.

The third Mrs. Tyrone Power has their son, born after Ty's death, to consider. But her new mate, Arthur Loew, is very rich, and Debbie has nothing to worry about on that score.

Italian Actor Walter Chiari has lost again. He lost Ava Gardner, then Anita Ekberg. And now, Belinda Lee, who is back with Prince Filippo Orsini.

Judy Garland's autobiography is coming along at the same rate as her recuperation from hepatitis. She works with author Freddie Finkelhoffe several hours a day. "Freddie knows me pretty well," says Judy—"21 years; and he wrote a lot of movies for me."

Caught Ray Milland while shopping. "I'm tanned," he explained, "because I took time off from 'Markham' to play some golf in Florida." The local chamber of commerce won't like this. Diane Varsi will have another book of poems published this summer.

William Holden has chalked up an average of 100,000 travel miles a year for each of the last 10 years. It's possible only the late John Foster Dulles traveled more. Richard Widmark will be making a movie in Vienna come springtime.

It will be interesting to see how English actor Peter Finch portrays on the screen that dashing dilettante, Oscar Wilde. Oscar's epigrams and "Dorian Gray" are still popular, but his poetry is only so-so.

HOSTESS — Stage actress Helen Hayes will be hostess for "The Lonely Years," the next broadcast in the Woman series of daytime programs, Tuesday, Ch. 5, 3 p.m. The problem this week: the tribulations of middle-aged and elderly women. Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich) will be on hand to air his views also.
